EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

DR. MCCOSH, ex President of Princeton, is very ill.

BOULANGER, the present great Frenchman, fled in terror to Belgium.

THREE other vessels have been sent to try their fortunes in Samoan waters.

WOULDN'T it be agreeable to be minister resident in the island of Tahiti when a great hurricane almost destroys the island.

Is Stanley alive or dead? is the question. Why dont the World expedition, which went to find him, send definite information?

THE same hurricane which wrecked our war vessels at Samoa caused the sea to almost entirely submerge the island of Tahite and was destructive to life on that island, which had about 9,000 population.

A GENERAL storm raged in the western part of this state and as far south as Baltimore on Saturday. In Baltimore snow fell until noon and was followed by rain and thunder and lightning, flooding the streets. In the Virginia Blue Ridge mountains the snow was fifteen inches deep. At Norfolk, Va., the high wind blew a tide which was eighteen inches higher than ever before.

THE New York Herald brings out a point in Stanley's letter which probably occurred to many readers. "With grim humor," says the Herald, "he pictures Emin's surprise at finding his supposed rescuer presenting himself with a kit made of two hats, four pairs of boots and a flannel jacket, and he argues that his advance through the vast forest was more salubrious than camping at Yambuga, since he lost only 50 per cent of his men, including deserters, while scarcely one-quarter of the reserves remained, the rest being victims of disease."

PROHIBITION FAIRLY TESTED.

The evidence that Prohibition has accomplished a marvelous work for the benefit of Kansas is overwhelming. In answer to many questions, the Capital-Commonwealth of that state sends out a long answer, from which we take the following:

First—Drunkenness and crime have diminished eighty per cent since the saloons were closed in Kansas.

Second—Where public sentiment in some of the larger cities was averse to the enforcement of the prohibitory law, and where democratic county or city officials ruled, it has been difficult to enforce the law. Such cases, however, are the exceptions. The democratic party of Kansas opposed prohibitory legislation until its leaders realized that it was one of the fixed insitutions of the state. Even these men have acquiesced and with one or two exceptions have declared for the complete enforcement of the law. Wherever republican officials have been in power the law has been as thoroughly enforced as any on the statute books.

Third—Prohibition has been beneficial in our towns and cities by reason of the decrease in crime and pauperism, and by the discontinuance of expensive legal machinery necessary where saloons, the natural breeders of crime, pauperism and drunkenness, exist. Men who formerly squandered their earnings in the dramshop now expend the same for better clothing, better food and better homes, conditions which materially overbalance the saloon license in the general prosperity of a community.

Fourth—Kansas' marvelous prosperity was ushered in with the adoption of the prohibitory amendment. The greatest growth in immigration, in the prosperity of our towns and cities, in the building of railroads, school houses, churches colleges, public libraries, etc., has been made since the adoption of the Prohibitory Amendment. Prohibition has stimulated the business of the state in every line and avocation, because the energies of our people have been directed toward the fostering of legitimate enterprises and not in sustaining saloons and the liquor interests which destroy and degrade.

The man who figures in an explosion begins at the bottom and works up.

WHY IT SHOULD BE "DRY."

Every vote cast on the 18th of June should be for the Prohibition Amendment.

Even whiskey sellers should vote or it.

Why?

For this reason:

Many of them are first class men and sell whiskey only because it is legalized and financially profitable. While others make money, they reason that they can too. They dislike the business, however, and are quite willing to give it up if others are compelled to do the same.

Is it doubted that the Prohibition Amendment, properly carried out by the enactment and enforcement of law, would benefit the voter?

Certainly, it would.

It is better to be sober than drunk.

Of the 60,000 deaths caused annually n this country by whiskey, 5000 are in Pennsylvania. Is it worth while to save 5,000 lives every year?

The instances are many, even in our borough, where men spend for drink money that their families need. A gentleman who knows whereof he speaks says that he knows of a man in this town who earns $1200 annually, but he and his family live in a house worth not more than $300 and that not $600 of his earnings are spent on his family. Yet the man is poor, because he spends more than half his earnings for whiskey.

Would not that family live well and and soon be able to own their own house if the husband and father could not spend his money for strong drink?

Strong drink is the cause of crime directly and indirectly. Most of the murders are committed by drunken men. Young Cleary, of Renovo, was intoxicated when he murdered Policeman Paul. Other crimes are committed while the offenders are drunk. Husbands and fathers when drunk beat their wives and children. They commit many acts which, when they are sober, make them blush with shame.

There is no state in the Union the influence of which will be greater for good than Pennsylvania if the Amendment is adopted here. It is the keystone of the arch and as Pennsylvania goes so goes the Union.

Prohibition has made Kansas and Iowa very flourishing states. Citizens of those two states who used to oppose Prohibition have been converted to it because they witness its good effects. Kansas is named the Empire State of the West. Iowa grew faster between 1884 and 1888 than during any previous four years. Even in Huntingdon county, this state, local Prohibition has accomplished good results.

With the abolition of one of the fruitful sources of crime and insanity would come less criminal business and fewer penitentiaries and asylums and consequently less taxation. It will require time to work this result, but the soonor we begin the sooner will the result be achieved.

Vote for Prohibition.

LOUIS KOSSUTH.

At the advanced age of almost 87, Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian revolutionist, soldier and scholar, is passing away. His is a most remarkable history. Of noble birth he was liberally educated, and soon after leaving college he entered upon public life, espousing the liberal cause. His opposition to Austrian rule was incessant and vehement and at the age of thirty-five years he was condemned to four years' imprisonment for treason. On his liberation he became editor of a journal supported by the opposition, and the agitation which followed culminated in the demand for Hungarian independence. When his preparations were well advanced for carrying out his scheme for a new government, the war of the revolution came and his cause perished in the general wreck.

All Europe had been convulsed as a result of the agitation of this great popular leader and fearless soldier. He had faced many dangers, but at last was forced to become a political refugee and fled to Turkey. His extradition was demanded by Austria and Russia, but at the intervention of the United States and England he was allowed to depart and was conveyed to this country in a steamer dispatched by the Government for that purpose. He arrived in December, 1851, and became the guest of the Nation. He was everywhere received with the most distinguished honors, and the official courtesies extended to him at Washington established a precedent which has since been followed in the reception of other popular leaders of like distinction. No foreigner except Lafayette was ever so highly honored by the United States.

It was said of him that he had mastered the English language while in prison, by the aid of two books only—the Bible and Shakespeare. This is not improbable, since he was master of German, French and Latin, in addition to his native tongue. The main purpose of his visit to this country was to secure moral and material aid that might tend to the promotion of the object nearest his heart—Hungarian independence. Political events in Europe so shaped themselves that his mission was practically barren of results, and he returned in the summer of 1852, only to encounter further disappointments. In 1862 he became a voluntary exile in Italy, and refusing to return to his native land was denaturalized by act of the Hungarian Legislature on the assumption that ten years' absence woked a forfeiture of citizenship. His remains may yet find a resting place in the soil which he loved, and the people in whose behalf he had risked so much with pen and tongue and sword may yet rear a monument to his memory.

INFORMATION FOR THE "WATCHMAN."

The Watchman asks:

"What free trade policy is now being deplorably felt in this country?"

First, the tariff reduction of 1883 and, second, the tariff agitation continued by the Democrats until the 4th of last month.

Again it asks:

"Has the war tariff been disturbed?"

"Oh, yes, frequently. The tariff has been removed from more than one half the articles which yielded a tariff just after the war,

Here is another question:

"But if this country is 'abundantly able to manufacture or produce all the necessaries of life and enough for the millions of other people in other countries' and can produce them 'better and more rapidly than elsewhere in the world,' what is the necessity for such high rates of protection?"

The rates of protection are not high; but the reason such rates are desirable is to prevent the goods of other countries from obtaining a foot hold there. They can be sold cheaply because they are the product of pauper labor. Then the foreign manufactures will sell below cost price with the object of closing American manufactories. After such establishments are closed, you know, they could increase the price and we would be at their mercy.

Also to compell people always to to pay well for articles which they use merely because they are imported. There are snobs of that sort, you know, who buy merely because what they purchase is of foreign manufacture. If the people of the American colonies, one hundred years ago, could exist on home productions, surely the people of these broad, vast and grand United States can do so.

If you want other questions answered, fire them at us.

BAD MEN IN GOOD CLOTHING.

The agitation of the necessity for a closer scrutiny into the character of the immigrants landed at our ports has had the effect of sharpening the wits of the Emigration Commissioners at New York city. It is a remarkable fact that heretofore they have taken it for granted that no one not a steerage passenger was unfit for American citizenship, and they never troubled themselves in the least as to the kind of persons who came over as second-cabin, saloon or "intermediate" passengers. They have recently discovered, however, that some of the most objectionable people, plainly of the prohibited classes, have been coming over in semi-aristocratic style, and they have determined to pay some attention to them hereafter.

A rule has been adopted requiring the officers who board incoming vessels from foreign ports to make an examination of all alien passengers, and directing that agents of vessels carrying passengers from foreign ports must land all aliens, except those designated first class, at Castle Garden. It is difficult to understand why any exception should be made. Very bad men may find their way hither in very good clothes, and may be able to travel in first class style. There is every reason to believe that some of the very worst elements in this country to-day came here with the outward semblance of respectability, and they will continue to come if no other passport is required than genteel garb.

T. P. RYNDER'S NOBLE WORK.

HIS "FREE SCHOOL BOOK" PLAN RECEIVING ENDORSEMENT ALL OVER THE STATE.

Under the caption of "T. P. Rynder's Noble Work," the Danville Record prints extracts from a number of papers supporting the measure. As the DAILY NEWS and Republican were the first papers to sustain Mr. Rynder in this work, and because we have a certain degree of pride in having Centre county maintain its leading position in all good things, we take pleasure in condensing and quoting portions of these articles. The abolition of the poll tax was started by Mr. Rynder nine years ago, and will become a part of our constitution in June. This free school book idea will stop the corruption of school boards, save two to five dollars a year to each parent, advance both teachers and pupils, and will be the law inside of three years. Here are the extracts;

How long, think you, are we Pennsylvanians going to submit to the bare-faced robbery perpetrated on us by the School Book Trust thieves of this State? Have we no spunk—no bit of manly courage left? If a poor devil of a tramp should, through the pangs of hunger, turn highway man and rob a farmer's market wagon, no punishment is too severe or too swift for him; but the worse than tramp highway-man, the high toned manager of the School Book Syndicate, is allowed to "hold up" a million people, and go through their pockets each year, in the open light of day. Farmer, what do you think of it? Are you going to keep right on paying $1, every two or three months, for a 10-cent school book which should last your children at least a year? Is an American who is coward enough to submit to such robbery worthy of the name of freeman?—Coudersport Workman.

The Senate Committee on Education have reported Senator Robbins' school bill negatively by a vote of 5 to 4. The young and active member from Westmoreland will attempt to get through a motion in the Senate to place it on the calendar. He has data showing that the books that are sold for $2 only cost 10 and 12 cents ready for sale, and that the whole expense for finishing and selling books as at present conducted is a most iniquitous measure. He has petitions and letters of encouragement from every county in the State in favor of the bill. He will also show that to equip three children with school books after they have removed from Beaver to Westmoreland county costs $15 alone These statistics will enter largely into his speech. In the meantime the House Education Committee will take charge of the measure on that side and report it in a few days.—Greensburg Independent.

Free school books should be the next improvement in our public school system. This would lift the free schools upon a still higher platform of freedom. Many a poor child has been debarred from obtaining a public school education for the want of the requisite means to obtain it. The more universal the diffusion of education the better will be the standard of our citizenship. Intelligence is the mother of true devotion, while ignorance is the mother of vice and wretchedness.—Philipsburg Journal. (Ind.)

Curwensville (Pa.) Review: Mr. T P Rynder, of Centre county, candidate for Congress in this district last fall, has been an untiring worker for the adoption of a uniform system of school books and we are glad to say that his work has not all been wasted. Several bills are now before the legislature to make school books uniform throughout the state, and we hope that one of them will be passed. Of course the school book syndicates will oppose any such bill as it would knock out the present exorbitant price asked for school books. Mr. Rynder should have the credit of this good work whether the legislature passes a bill or not. The economy of uniform school books is apparent to all outside the trusts and the measure will be adopted soon in spite of the school book trusts.

"Free school books are a necessary part of a really free school system," Easton Sunday Call.

The above extracts—we could print columns of them if we had room—show how broadly this subject has taken hold all over the state. The only paper that we have noticed opposing this grand reform is the Bellefonte Watchman, and even that heads its article "The School Book Abuse." But the Watchman will learn. The DAILY NEWS congratulates Mr. Rynder on this noble work.

STEPS already taken indicate clearly the policy of the new Administration toward home industries. Secretary Windom has ruled—and with irresistible reasons—that broken tops, a preparation of combed wool, are not wool waste, subject to 10 cents per pound duty, but are scoured wool, in other than ordinary conditions, and therefore subject to 60 cents per pound duty. This ruling will relieve our wool growers of one of the most serious obstacles to the success of their industry, as millions of pounds of broken tops have been imported and sold in our markets in competition with domestic wools. A few more rulings in this direction will do more than an advance in tariff rates to bring prosperity once more to American sheep husbandry, and turn the tide from a steady annual decrease to a constant and rapid increase of American flocks.

THE FIRST MONTH.

Thirty days is a brief period in which to test an administration which is to extend over four years, says the New York Graphic. But in no longer time than thirty days "the first Democratic administration in a quarter of a century," just four years ago to-day, had so far failed to meet public requirement and expectation that its final defeat was already predicted with certainty. Confederate brigadiers had been put in the saddle, faithful and efficient public servants had been dismissed to make room for incompetent men, the free trade element had shown that it was in favor at the white house, and doubt and dismay had begun to paralyze commerce and industry.

Between that picture and the one which represents the first thirty days of President Harrison's term the contrast is strong and pleasant. The union soldiers take the place of the confederates in the diplomatic service. Competent democratic officials have been told to go about their business until their terms expire. Appointments, as far as made have been characterized by Jeffersonian qualifications—honesty, efficiency, capability. But, above all, it is understood by the whole country that the American policy is foremost of the principles that will be maintained during this administration. Protection to American industry and labor is the keynote of General Harrison's four years in the white house. The interest of America is to be paramount for at least that period to all others combined. The manufacturing and commercial lines of the country know what the policy will be in this respect, and can make their arrangements confidently and aggressively on this basis.

Naturally where certainty has succeeded uncertainty, the business situation is bound to improve. The administration's financial policy is conservative and safe. Mr. Cleveland believed in piling up the surplus in order that he might point to it as the result of protection and so demand the adoption of free trade. The surplus may continue to accumulate until congress meets and passes the senate tariff bill, but meantime Secretary Windom is cautiously exercising his powers as secretary of the treasury to buy bonds enough to prevent a money stringency.

The country has reason to congratulate itself on the change and on the prospects of good government as shown in thirty days of Republican rule.

THE following is a list of the most important nominations made by the President since our last report: John T. Abbott, of New Hampshire, to be minister to Columbia; E. H. Terrell, of Texas, to be minister to Belgium; Robt. Adams, of Pa., to be minister to Brazil; L. B. Minier, of California, to be minister to the Central American States: W. L. Scruggs, of Georgia, to be minister to Venezuela; W. O. Bradley of Kentucky, to be minister to Cores; G. Chandler, of Kansas, to be First Assistant Secretary of the interior; G. L. Poetry.

'TIS TIME TO SWING OUR AXES.

We've had enough of License Laws,
Enough of Liquor Taxes,
We've turned the grindstone long enough,
'Tis time to swing our axes.
This deadly upas tree must fall,
Let strokes be strong and steady,
Pull up the stumps, grub out the roots,
O brothers are you ready?

No longer will we shield this foe
To manhood, love and beauty;
We've had enough of compromise,
The right alone is duty,
We've had enough of weak men and distrust,
The burden grows by shifting.
Just put our shoulder to the load,
And do our share of lifting.

We've had enough of forge and chains
This Demon drink to fetter;
Good bullets from the ballot box,
Well sped, will suit him better,
Will you not haunt him to death?
Speak out! Speak out O brothers.
Will ye not sound the bugle call,
O Sisters, Wives and Mothers?

We've had enough of shame and woe,
Of cruel spoliation,
Who fears to say it loud enough
To thrill our land and nation?
God help us all to work like men
By earnest agitation,
Till we have crushed the power of rum,
By righteous legislation.

A TWILIGHT FANCY.

The day that is fading in darkness
Has brought back a ghost to me,
A voice which I thought was forgotten,
A face I have prayed not to see.

And yet to-day in the twilight,
When the shadows were deep in the sky,
I heard a lost voice in the distance,
And my heart must respond to its cry.

I have struggled and hushed it in silence,
I have fought to live down the old pain,
But a whisper that pierced through the shadows
Has brought back the past once again.

I know not what has recalled it,
Perhaps 'twas the hush and the calm
Of the darkness that gathered around me,
Like the peace of the eventide psalm.

I have hid it once more in the casket
Of youth, and its fullness of love;
I have buried it deep in the darkness,
And look for my comfort above.

V. B. CAUSEY,

THE MIDNIGHT CRY.

The young man stood at the parlor door,
And a nice young man was he
Her father was up on the second floor,
And he weighed 203.

The house was filled with a solemn hush;
And the young man's heart with bliss
O'erflowed as the maid, with a modest blush,
Vouchsafed him a good-night kiss.

Then heavily down from the second floor
Came pa's sarcastic voice,
And the cold sweat poured through every pore
Of his dearest daughter's choice.

For the old man said, "You tell that dude
To put on his hat and flee,
For when I'm excited I'm sometimes rude,
And I weigh 203."

The young man waited to hear no more;
He picked up his cane and fled;
And the father remained on the second floor
And his daughter went to bed.

THE PUREST THING OF EARTH.

I saw two little children,
Two little baby girls,
The one with raven tresses,
The other golden curls,
By chance stand by each other
Upon the busy street;
And as if some unseen spirit,
Introduced each sweet,
They soft embraced each other
And kissed a kiss of love—
An imagery of angels
Before God's throne above.

And as they were embracing,
I thought a world like this
Could treasure nothing purer
Than a baby's kiss;
But they had childhood's pureness,
A truth they could not hide,
So each forsook the other
For its mother's side;
For they had baby wisdom,
Learned ere their mortal birth,
Each one knew a mother was—
The purest thing of earth.

Our Story Teller'

IN THE NICK OF TIME.

Miss Lily Somers, night telegraph operator at the Floodwood station, sat before her table, on which the telegraph instrument clicked busily, a thoughtful expression upon her face.

A face whose expression was its charm, that never could be called pretty, but that, nevertheless, suggested a possibility—only a possibility—of being handsome. For there is a vast difference between pretty and handsome. Pretty people seldom know very much; but to be handsome, a person must have brains as an inner as well as an outer beauty.

Floodwood was a forlornly desolate spot, and one where any woman, except Lily, would have been afraid to come, much less to stay alone all night with nothing but the wind sadly sighing through the wires overhead and the shrill shrieks of the wild cats away up on that mountain side to keep her company through her nightly vigils. But to her there was something fascinating in the very desolation of the place. From early childhood she had been accustomed to commune with nature in her wildest scenes, and played and wondered at will in the mountain glens and canons. With no foolish old woman or silly nurse girl to frighten her childish senses with stories of hideous ghosts and monstrous goblins, she had grown to womanhood naturally brave and fearless. In truth she did not yet understand the meaning of the word fear.

Her office was nothing more than a roughly built shanty, seven or eight feet square with a small window in each end, and one in the door which faced the railroad track. It had been hurriedly put together with green lumber while the road was in course of construction, with the intention of only using it temporarily until a better one could be built, but as usual in such cases it had done duty for its original purpose ever since.

The rough, unpainted boards were now badly warped and shrunken by long exposure to the elements, and in many places large knots had fallen completely out.

No doubt in the Winter time, the bleak mountain wind cheerily whistled through these many apertures, and while one side of the unhappy operator was being nicely browned like a piece of the red-hot stove, the other side would be refrigerated like a frozen rabbit.

It was about 1 o'clock in the morning when Lily received an order from the train dispatcher which read as follows:

"To OPERATOR, FLOODWOOD: Hold No. 21 until No. 22 arrives. E. K. C."

On receipt of this order she immediately displayed the red signal light, which is furnished all telegraph stations for this purpose, in a conspicuous place, in plain sight of passing trains and also where it could be seen from the office window.

The necessity for this order and position of the two trains, briefly stated, were as follows:

No. 22 had arrived at Silver Creek ten miles west of Floodwood, a few minutes after No. 21 had passed Redwood, which was thirteen miles east of Floodwood. As No. 22 was late and could go no farther on the schedule, according to the rules of the road, they would be compelled to lay at Silver Creek until No. 21 arrived there, unless they could get orders by telegraph to meet them at some other station. Floodwood being the only intervening telegraph office between the two trains, the dispatcher gave the above order to that station, and as soon as it was properly acknowledged by Lily he sent another order to No. 22 at Silver Creek which read in this manner:

"To CONDUCTOR AND ENGINEER No. 22: Meet No. 21 at Floodwood. Approach carefully. E. K. C."

The intelligent reader will readily understand that by means of these orders the two trains would meet each other at Floodwood in perfect safety, notwithstanding that one of them knew nothing of the arrangement.

To explain. If No. 21 should arrive first, they would be stopped by the red light, which showed that there were orders for them at this station. The conductor and engineer would immediately proceed to the telegraph office, where the operator would deliver them a copy of the order to hold them for No. 22. This would be sufficient, and they would wait until No. 22 arrived. If No. 22 should arrive first, the execution of the order would be yet more simple. No. 22 would take siding, and as soon as they were clear Lily would be at liberty to take down the red signal lantern, and allow No. 21 to pass without stopping No. 22 having arrived, the object of the order was already fulfilled. If both trains should happen to arrive at the same time, the red signal light would stop No. 21, and as No. 22 had instructions to "approach carefully," they would do so, expecting to find No. 21 occupying the main track.

Lily perfectly understood the importance of the order she had just received, and during the long hour, which wore slowly away, she kept careful watch of the signal light, which, however, continued to burn as brightly as ever. At last she heard a rumbling noise away in the west, which gradually became louder and more distinct. By this she knew that No. 22 was coming, and would probably get in on the siding before No. 21 should arrive.

The rumbling became louder and louder each moment; the earth began to tremble and the peculiar vibration in the air which gives warning of a rapidly approaching train hummed loudly in her ears.

She began to feel anxious, as they were evidently coming at a big rate of speed and not approaching as carefully as their order had instructed them; she also had not yet heard the whistle which is always sounded by trains when approaching a station, and this omission increased her fears that something was wrong.

But she was given no time for further reflection, as the train now suddenly dashed around a curve not a hundred yards distant, running at full speed.

Lily flew out and stood between the rails swinging her hand lamp wildly across the track and shouting at the top of her clear, young voice. But no attention was paid to her signal, the train coming madly on, with such a rattle and clash that it drowned the sound of her voice.

The roaring, rushing train was now upon her and she barely had time to spring from the track and escape with her life. With a rattling crash and an awful rush of air the hissing, throbbing monster sped swiftly past her, while the clank, clank, clank of the carwheels passing over a splice near by was so rapid that it resembled the rapid hammering on the anvil in a blacksmith shop.

For a moment Lily was unnerved and bewildered, but suddenly arousing herself to action, she rushed into the office and seizing a piece of fire brick that did duty for a stove-leg, she turned and hurled it through the window of the caboose which was just passing. An instant later the red lights on the rear end of the train had disappeared around a curve in the cut, and the rattle of the runaway train quickly lessened in the distance.

Lily's heart throbbed painfully and she was seized with a sudden fit of shivering which most persons of delicate organizations are subject to when under great excitement. As soon as she had somewhat recovered, she went into the office and calling the train dispatcher, who answered at once, she said:

"No. 22 passed at full speed and No. 21 not yet arrived?"

"My God!" telegraphed back the dispatcher as swiftly as his frightened fingers could form the letters. "The crew must be asleep. They will strike in that cut and pile up fifty feet high! Heavens, this is horrible!"

Lily then went on to explain that she had attempted to awaken them by throwing a brick through the caboose window, and on hearing this the dispatcher opened his key without waiting for her to finish and said excitedly:

"Run to the east end of the siding, and if you see them backing up throw the switch and let them in on the siding. No. 21 is not due here for five minutes, and there is a chance for them yet."

"I have no switch key," said Lily.

"Break the lock with a hammer, a rock, or anything," was the quick reply. "Run, fly."

Lily seized an old axe that was lying handy, and, with a vague idea that she might also need the red light, she took it in her other hand and flew up the track with the speed of the wind, at the imminent risk of falling and breaking her neck in the inky darkness.

Once she stumbled and fell, and the lantern was dashed from her hand and went rolling along the ground far beyond her reach by the sudden impetus which her fall had given it; but without pausing to regain it she sprang to her feet and bounded on.

The switch at the east end of the building was fully half a mile from the office, and about the same distance from the beginning of the cut. If No. 22 could back in on the siding in time they would be safe; but if they attempted to back on the main track past the telegraph office, they were liable to be overtaken by No. 21 before going half the distance; as, according to the dispatcher's figures, No. 21 should now be very close.

As Lily reached the switch a pair of gleaming red lights suddenly appeared around the curve in the cut; and she knew that the train was already rapidly backing up and that she had not a moment to lose.

Feeling for the lock in the darkness she then struck it several heavy blows with the ax, which she still retained. Luckily one of the blows taking effect the broken lock dropped to the ground. She then grasped the switch lever and attempted to throw it over, but it resisted her utmost efforts to move it.

The train was now only a short distance away, and with the energy of despair she braced her feet against the switch-standard and, putting forth her strength in one mighty effort, the obstinate lever came over with a sudden jerk and No. 22 glided safely in on the siding.

The shrill scream of a whistle was now heard in the cut, and as soon as the train was clear she again exerted all her strength and threw the switch back to its former position.

A headlight now flashed around the curve, and a moment later No. 21 rushed roaring by.

Lily, by her bravery, promptness and presence of mind, had averted a terrible calamity.

At the official investigation which took place a few days later, the entire crew of the runaway train acknowledged that they were asleep, and that the conductor had been awakened by a brick thrown in at the caboose window.

The only excuse they had for their neglect of duty was that they had been on the road for thirty-two consecutive hours without sleep or rest, and they were completely worn out.

Notwithstanding the fact that the management of the road was responsible for requiring men to run this long double trip, the entire crew were summarily discharged for criminal neglect of duty, as though man's endurance was as an infallible bank, to be drawn on at pleasure.

A Startling Resurrection.

Pittsburg Dispatch, 2d.

An amusing and somewhat startling event occurred at the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Greensburg yesterday morning. A coffin was left lying on the platform Sunday night, and about 5 o'clock in the morning the woman who cleans the waiting rooms, while engaged in sweeping out the ladies' room, happened to look out of the window and spy the coffin. While she looked at it the lid was slowly raised and a man's head appeared. Then, as she gazed in affright, he slowly sat up in the coffin.

With a yell of terror, such as a Comanche squaw might utter, she fled to the agent's house, with rapid pulls at the bell, soon had him aroused.

Unable to understand what the trouble was, the agent hastened to the station in his stocking feet, and there he found the the cause of the woman's terror, coolly walking around looking for his hat.

His Corpseship informed them that he "was drunk last night," and his "buddy" had been stowed away in a coffin to sleep.

Keep Your Mouth Shut.

Washington Post.

An old man was found dead in San Francisco and taken to the morgue, where a young man claimed the body as that of his father and ordered an undertaker to give it respectable burial. When the body had been bestowed in the coffin the young man took a last look and discovered that the lower jaw had fallen, exposing a set of false teeth.

'Here,' said the young man to the undertaker, 'this is not my father; he had no false teeth,' and, refusing to pay for the coffin, walked away.

The undertaker, with disappointment written all over his face, seized the body, yanked it out of the casket and slapped it down upon the slab, saying to it:

'There, you plaguey fool, you! If you'd a kep' yer mouth shut you might a had a first-class funeral.'

They Both Heard the Remark.

From the Cleveland Plaindealer.

Two young married ladies, friends and neighbors, walked along Euclid avenue recently. Two women passed them, and in passing one of them said to the other, "What beautiful eyes!" Both of the interested parties heard the remark, and a moment later one said to the other: "Wasn't that rather impudent of that woman to flatter me in that manner and in my hearing?"

"Flatter you?" snapped the other, "you're dreaming."

The two neighbors have parted company, and they never speak as they pass by.

A MYSTERIOUS MALADY.

Mollie Fancher, the Remarkable Clairvoyant of Brooklyn, said to be Dying.

From the N. Y. MAIL and EXPRESS.

It is rumored about among the many friends of Mollie Fancher, of Brooklyn, that she is again at the point of death. Ten years ago Mollie was one of the most famous women in the country, but the papers have given her a good long rest, and the country has forgotten her. It is claimed on her behalf that for twenty-two years she has eaten nothing and has yet remained fat, that she has lain in the same position for the same period, yet never had a bed sore; that she is blind and yet reads all the books and newspapers going; that she is paralyzed from head to foot with the exception of her fingers and the left elbow joint and yet makes the most delicate and exquisite wax flowers and embroidery, and that though she never has had any natural sleep since the beginning of her affliction she has had numberless trances, some of them lasting six months at a stretch.

It is also claimed for Mollie that she is the most wonderful clairvoyant in the country, being able to follow her friends about the city in spirit and tell them afterward what they had been doing.

Twenty-two years ago, when Mollie was a big, healthy girl of 18, attending Dr. West's private school for young ladies in Montague street, she was thrown from a horse and received a severe nervous shock and perhaps internal injuries. She did not realize all this at the time, and went on attending school. A few days later she tried to get off a car while it was still in motion. Her dress caught on the rear platform, she fell, and was dragged about fifteen yards over the cobblestones. This last accident completely wrecked her.

Her right arm was bent under her head by paralysis, but by being propped up with pillows she could carry the left hand up till it met the right hand at the back of Mollie's head, and the fingers soon learned to do wonders in this strange position, with no eyes to guide them. They learned to mold the most exquisite wax flowers and afterward make the most intricate and delicate embroidery. This work is so fine that it never gets on the market. The rich folk who have known Mollie for a score of years snap it up at fancy prices. She tells the different shades of color in silk thread more infallibly by clairvoyance sight than she could if she merely possessed natural sight.

She lives with her aunt, Mrs. Crosby, and a colored servant, in a neat little cottage on the corner of Gates avenue and Downing street. Her father was wealthy when she met with her accident. He lost his money and died, and for eighteen years Mollie has kept her house and paid all expenses out of her earnings by fancy work.

Mollie is anything but uncanny in appearance. She looks healthy and is plump and solid. Her hair is black and curls close to her head; her face is round and youthful, and her features are good. Her teeth are very white. She wears a bright sleeveless jacket, which shows snow white arms, neck and shoulders.

Mollie lives in a little world of her own. Her aunt Mrs. Crosby and the colored girl are her only regular attendants, but she is known to all the members of the Washington Avenue Baptist Church and a few of the wealthiest members are her particular friends and constant visitors. Three years and a half ago, when the Emanuel Baptist Church was founded three families who are Mollie's most particular friends joined it, and Mollie, wanting to be a member of the same organization, took a tranfer letter from the pastor of the Washington Avenue Church and joined the Emanuel Church. Of course she never attended the services in either place, but the services come to her when the pastor of Emanuel Church makes his visits. The members of both churches believe most firmly these things in regard to Mollie.

I.—That she can see better by clairvoyance than they can by natural sight.

II.—That she has eaten nothing for twenty-two years.

III.—That though paralyzed she is the cleverest maker of embroidery and wax flowers in the city.

IV.—That she lies in deathlike trances for months at a time, and that this is her substitute for natural sleep.

The nearest that Mollie comes to eating is placing a grape in her mouth and draining it of juice, or holding a piece of banana in her mouth for a minute or two. Vinegar is one of the things she is very fond of and her aunt slices tomatoes and steeps them in vinegar. When the vinegar becomes well flavored by the tomatoes it is drained off and Mollie sips it.

Spiritualists claim Mollie as one of their faith, but she will have nothing to do with them. Her friends among the church people look upon her as an exposition of the Divine power, a continuous miracle. Dr. L'Hommegue, of the Brooklyn Board of Health, told me the other day that he heard Mollie read from Goethe and Moliere in the original German and French, clairvoyantly. Mrs. Potter, Brooklyn city missionary, is another witness of the clairvoyant wonders of this girl. Scientific investigators and newspaper men are alike kept at a distance from Mollie, and if her physicians understand the reason why the laws of nature make an exception in her favor they say nothing. Excitement of any kind is liable to throw her into convulsions. Three weeks ago she was elected president of a famous textile association in New York. She cannot attend meetings, of course, but her name means much in Brooklyn. Mollie's present danger lies in the fact that her aunt, Mrs. Crosby, is ill. The effect of this on Miss Fancher's mind has been most distressing, and her strength has been reduced to a lower ebb than for many years past.

The End of All Life.

From the latest scientific information available we learn this globe rotates on its axis at a velocity of 26,000 miles every twenty-four hours, and that it is about nine miles less in diameter at the poles than at the equator. Another fact which has been ascertained is that the axis of the globe is gradually becoming more oblique and that this gradual alternation will arrive at its maximum in about 39,000 years, and that when the climax occurs the South pole will occupy the place where the North pole now is. From the evidences of glacial drifts found in the valley of the Amazon, which is now the equator, it is asserted, that the last great climax was a glacial one, as in the Amazon country. The tracks of the glaciers show they come from northern latitudes.

It is pretty correctly estimated that the crust of the earth is about sixteen miles in thickness, and below that distance is molten matter. The great velocity of the rotation of the globe generates a large centrifugal force, which is the cause of the globe being nine miles different at the poles than at the equator. As the obliquity continues, the seasons will gradually become colder, and as the glaciers advance southward the human family will gradually move toward the tropics until the climax is reached, when by a suddenness, "in the twinkling of an eye," all life on the globe will be extinguished, and in all probability, the present continents will sink and oceans take their places and other continents appear where oceans now are. Every person must shudder at the prospect of such a calamity to the human family, but we would advise the present generation not to become unduly excited over it as the climax will not occur for 30,000 years to come.

A Human Almanac.

Quincy (Ill.) Special to Chicago Tribune.

Brown county has a prodigy in the shape of a ten-year-old boy with a talent for days and dates. Roy Odenweller, son of Mr. S P Odenweller, of Industry township, is the infant wonder. Give him any date in any month of this year, last year or next year, and he can at once tell you the day of the week upon which it falls or has fallen. For example, ask him on what day of the week will Oct. 17, 1889, fall, and he will promptly answer "Thursday," which is correct. And so of any date of last year or the year to come. How he arrives at the solution he does not know. Numerous gentlemen of undoubted veracity have repeatedly tested his strange power. The little fellow is a bright youngster, but does not exhibit any unusual precocity beyond this peculiar gift. He says that beyond the three years—the current, the past and the next—he cannot give correct answers. Next year he will lose all power over 1888 (with which he is still conversant), and his mind will grasp that of 1892, of which he now knows nothing. He has no rule or method, nor does he know how he arrives at the true answer, but it is certain that he is correct when answering.

DIDN'T KNOW HIS NAME.

A street car going west on Madison street last Saturday afternoon was loaded with women returning from the matinee. In one corner of the car a countryman sat. When the car reached May street the conductor opened the door and called "May!" A woman left the car at this street. When it reached Ann the conductor called that name and another woman got of. At Elizabeth street he called out "Elizabeth" and two women went out. When he called "Ada!" still another woman got up and left.

The countryman went out on the platform and said to the conductor:

"Do you know where I want to get off?"

"I do not."

"Do you know my name?"

"No, sir; I do not."

"Do you know all the women in Chigago?"

"Well, I should say not. Why?"

"Nothin.' I heerd you callin' them women that have jist been gittin' off by their first names, and you knowed jist where they wanted to stop, an' I thought you was acquainted with all the people town."

Closing Exercises of the Curtin Schools.

On Friday afternoon the Evangelical church near Curtin station was crowded to its greatest capacity to hear the pleasing exercises incident to the close of the excellent graded schools of that place, taught by Misses Minnie E Hoy and Laura Weidle. The schools have had a most prosperous existence during the winter and the two accomplished lady instructors have effected wonders in training the really bright children in this community. The results which the exercises of Friday showed were surprising to those who know all the circumstances and conditions.

The design and plan of the exercises were new and novel—a decided departure from stereotyped character of school exercises. More than half of it was music, in which Miss Hoy presided at the instrumental part and Miss Weidle conducted the vocal selections. Calisthenics have here been carried to a high degree of skill and were introduced.

The exercise was high in character—really beyond what would be supposed to be the capacity of the pupils. It might be termed an operetta, there being a continuous connection between all the exercises from beginning to the end. It was designed to be a representation of a school of a half century ago with modern improvements introduced at intervals to show the contrast. The parts taken by the pupils were difficult, requiring thorough training, but they were performed in a manner so apt and perfect that even a professional could scarcely have excelled. It would take a long time and much space to review all the exercises, which were sufficiently humorous to attract the attention of even the youngest while they gave thought and displayed skill which would interest the most fastidious individual. There were exquisite bits of humor, there was a display of eloquence, an indulgence in excellent sentiment which were exceedingly attractive. It was so planned that all the pupils could take part while each one had an exercise suitable to his or her special talents.

It reflected very great credit on the ability of the teachers and the capacity of the pupils. The schools at present of course, are not so largely attended as they were a week ago, but on Friday there was an average of about thirty pupils for each school in attendance.

A Comedy of Blunders.

We take this article from the Lock Haven Daily Democrat of Friday:

"Matthew Twain" indulges in a somewhat homorous discourse about "Blunders" in the columns of the Democrat today.

We searched diligently for the discourse, and failing to find it, had our amanuensis search, with the same result. Wasn't the insertion of that item a blunder? We also have this to say: The Democrat has no right to publish "Matthew Twain's" humorous discoures. He is under bonds at $1000 per week to contribute all his discourses to the DAILY NEWS. Consequently, if the Democrat publishes such a "discourse" it will be compelled to suffer the legal consequences

Social Gatherings.

Mrs. Aaron Williams very cordially and elegantly entertained her Sunday-school class of young lady pupils at her pleasant home on Howard street on Friday evening. The class is one of the finest in the Methodist Sunday-school. It numbers about sixteen bright young ladies. The evening was spent in conversation, music, etc. The very choicest refreshments were served and the evening was a delightful one to all.

Quite a large and elegant tea party was given on Friday evening at the residence of Ellis Orvis, Esq., on Linn street.

Watkins Glen Sold.

In exchange for Watkins Glen Mr. Greening has given Mr. Michener real estate on Monroe street and Clinton, Willoughby, Summer and Putnam avenues worth $150,000.

Suggestions for Arbor Day.

Governor Beaver has issued a proclamation designating Friday, April 26, as Arbor Day. In the course of his proclamation the Governor says: "The planting of trees and shrubbery in our public school grounds and along our highways is earnestly recommended to our people. The subject of tree planting, however, has become so important in many ways that the Executive feels compelled to give wider scope, if possible, to the observance of Arbor Day than is hereinbefore indicated. Public parks are being provided for in several of our cities and towns, through private munificence and public enterprise. In what way can the individual citizen of these cities and towns better show his appreciation of and gratitude for these benefactions than by planting trees, which shall not only manifest his appreciation, but at the same time deepen the interest of himself and his family in a work which is so essentially for the public good?

"What better rallying point for the family in a public park than the tree of their own planting and nature? What more beautiful tribute to the men who have so nobly provided for the health and happiness of future generations than such a mark of grateful appreciation on the part of the people of the several communities benefited? The places for such tree planting could be designated by the authorities in charge and the results could not but be in many ways beneficial."

Going for the Bucket Shops.

Mr. Talbot of Chester, has introduced into the Legislature a bill which is designed to do away with what are usually called "bucket shops," such as are conducted under the disguise of brokers offices.

The bill provides that it shall be lawful for any person to sue for and recover in an action of assumpsit any money hereafter paid or lost by such person in the pretended purchase, sale or dealing on margin in any certificates, stocks bonds or other securities of any railroad company or other corporation or association to any stock broker, corporation or other person pretending to be engaged in the business of stock brokerage, when no actual or bona fide purchase, sale or dealing shall actually take place.

The bill also makes the receipt by any person or persons, copartnership or corporation of any money or other valuable thing for any falsely pretended purchase, sale or dealing on margin a fraudulent contraction.

It also contains provisions by which a warrant can be issued for the arrest of any person guilty of a violation of the act and makes the officers of any defendant corporation liable personally. Mr. Talbot says he will try to get a special order for his bill.

It will likely become a law, in which event the "bucket shop" bosses will be under the necessity of searching for other and more legitimate employment.

The Typical Pennsylvania Woodsman.

The Pennsylvania woodsman, forest-born and bred, is stout, hearty, and fearless. He seems at all times indifferent to weather and exposure. He has an eye for the picturesque and the sombre gloom of his native pines serves but to strengthen his predilection for striking combinations of prismatic hues in his dress, His working clothes, though thick and warm, sit singularly free of restraint upon his active figure. A woolen cap and overshirt may be respectively yellow and red, while his thick leggings, covering trousers and reaching to the knees are either green or blue. His feet are encased in stout solidly-heeled rubber shoes and defended from the cold with numberless pairs of knit stockings. This combination is proof against the rigors of the most phenomenal of Pennsylvania winters and is only vulnerable to moisture.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Spring.

In the spring when the green gits back in the trees,
And the sun comes out and stays,
And yer boots pull on with a good, tight squeeze,
And you think of yer barefoot days;
When you ort to work and you want to not,
And you and yer wife agrees
It's time to spade up the garden lot—
When the green gits back in the trees—
Well, work is the least of my ideas
When the grees, you know, gits back in the trees.

When the green gits back in the trees, and bees
Is a-buzzin' aroun' again,
In that kind of a lazy "go-as-you-please"
Old gate they hum roun' in;
When the ground's all bald where the hayrick stood
And the crick's riz, and the breeze
Coaxes the bloom in the old dogwood.
And the green gits back in the trees—
I like, as I say, in sich scenes as these,
The time when the green gits back in the trees.

When the whole tail-feathers o' winter-time
Is all pulled out and gone,
And the sap it thaws and begins to climb,
And the sweat it starts out on
A feller's forrerd, a-gittin' down
At the old spring on his knees—
I kind o' like, jest a-loaferin' roun'
When the green gits back in the trees—
Jes' a-potterin' roun' as I—durn—please—
When the gree, you know, gits back in the trees.

WHAT MR H I BUDD, CORRESPONDING SECRETARY OF THE BURLINGTON COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY, HAS TO SAY ABOUT THE MICROBE KILLER.

MOUNT HOLLY, Feb. 17, 1889.
RADAM'S MICROBE KILLER CO.
GENTLEMEN:—Until persuaded by a regular practicing physician, last October, to try William Radam's Microbe Killer, I had experimented with many different kinds of patent medicines, and had placed myself under treatment from several of our most noted physicians, in addition to which I visited many of the consumptive health resorts of the country, all in a vain search for relief from an inherited tendency to pulmonary disease, aggravated by attacks of pneumonia, congestion and inflammation. In sheer despair I tried your remedy, but shall ever bless the doctor who recommended it, for I am now entirely free from the racking cough that made life miserable; am improving in health and rapidly gaining in strength. My friends are so surprised at my improved condition that they almost weary me relating the story of my cure. I have suffered so much and seen so much suffering from this fatal disease that I feel it my duty to advise all to try what I believe has proved my salvation. Sincerely yours,
H I BUDD.

A BILLOW OF FLAME.

Thrilling Experience of John Williams a Pioneer of Kansas.

In 1871 John Williams moved from near Indianapolis to Southwestern Kansas and took a claim. Before moving his family he went with a 15-year-old son, Henry, to prepare a home. Henry recently returned on a business trip, and in conversation with a News reporter, related some early experiences in the great wilderness which Western Kansas then was. He said:

"We went out in the summer and chose our claim. It was seventeen miles to the nearest neighbor, and in the uninterrupted prairie. The city of Wichita has since grown up within thirty miles of us. We bought some lumber and hired it hauled from the railroad, and then built a small frame house, camping near by as we worked.

"We had trouble to keep a supply of water on hand, and a great many annoyances had to be overcome. As we had yet no horses, every errand to the station or the neighbors had to be done on foot, and was an undertaking requiring several days. Occasionally bands of Indians came riding across the prairie, and generally carried away some of our valuable tools, which we had presented to them rather than risk giving offense.

"Finally, well along in the fall, our house was finished and we set to work to dig a well. It was about twenty feet deep, when, one day, while we were resting at noon, we saw a tremendous cloud of smoke in the West. It spread up and filled half the horizon. We were excited and ran here and there to find some place of security.

"In the half hour that followed the wind rose to a gale and a wall of seething flame, like a hurricane, extended as far to the north and south as we could see, and rushing toward us at terrific speed. When not more than half a mile away, and we were holding to each other's hands in despair, I thought of the well.

"We ran for it with desperate speed, and leaped down the ladder with scarcely a touch. Just as we reached the bottom a billow of flame rolled above us with a sullen roar that to this day, as I recall it, sounds like a hoarse cry of disappointment. In an instant it was gone and we climbed from our retreat. The wall of fire was east of us and rushing away as rapidly as it came.

"It seemed a vast scroll of flame, which progressed by rolling along before the wind. It would seize bunches of tall grass and carry them up and over in its great cylinder, thirty or forty feet in diameter. It was an awful sight, and our hairbraidth escape dazed and stunned us. For a moment we gazed at the long line, its roar dying away as the blackened desert behind it gradually widened. Then we thought of the house and turned. It was burning in a hundred places. We had no water, and it would have been unavailing if we had it. Fifteen minutes more and the only thing to show for our summer's work was the smoke-filled hole which had saved our lives."

THE RED TAPE NUISANCE.

There is a lady living on the North Side who, rightly or wrongly, is full of indignation at a certain express company. A month ago she received a postal card stating that there was a package in the office addressed to her. Anticipating a testimonial benefit from some thoughtful friend, she called for the package and presented the card. But the agent wasn't ready to give it up until he learned some of the particulars.

"Were you expecting a package?" he asked, in the usual stereotyped way.

The lady admitted she held herself open to such occurrences.

"From where were you expecting one?" asked the agent.

"How do I know? I'm not a mind reader."

"Have you friends in Dakota?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

By this time the holder of the postal was becoming tired. She declined to pin up an exhibit of her Dakota visiting list and left the office.

A few days later she got another postal card concerning the same package and went through the same formula of questions.

"I wish," said she finally, "you would stop sending me cards about this parcel. I want the package or a rest."

"You don't ge the package," said the agent.

"What are you going to do with it?"

"Keep it a year and then sell it."

Thus the war stands, and the lady lives in daily expectation of receiving another postal card.

THE 30TH OF APRIL.

How the Inauguration of Washington Will Be Commemorated.

THE LITERARY EXERCISES.

They Will Consist of a Prayer by Dr. Storrs, a Poem by Whittier, an Oration by Chauncey Depew and an Address by the President.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The centennial celebration committee announces through Chairman Elbridge T. Gerry that the literary exercises, the programme of which has just been completed, form the essential feature of the centennial. These facts are also furnished in connection with this feature of the celebration:

It was on the south porch of the sub-treasury, on the 30th of April, 1789, that Washington was inaugurated as the first president of the United States. The spot is now marked by a bronze statue of Washington of heroic size, which was obtained through the public spirited exertions of S. B. Chittenden and others.

On this spot a large platform will be built and suitable exercises held on the 30th of April, 1889. By special permission of the sub-treasurer, the centennial committee has been authorized to construct a platform on the south front of the sub-treasury, extending from the fourth step from the top of the granite steps out to the curb line on Wall street and around the corner on Nassau street. By the permission of Superintendent Mason, of the assay office, the platform will extend for some distance in front of that building. The platform will afford accommodations for about 1,000 persons.

On the Wall street front, directly at the base of the Washington statue, will be a platform and desk for the use of the orators of the day. Special seats will be provided near at hand for the immediate party of the president and other distinguished guests. The rest of the platform will be reserved for the holders of complimentary tickets, which will be issued to ladies as well as gentlemen. The duty of seating the guests will be in the hand of a platform committee of ushers.

The exercises will consist of a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Storrs, a poem by John Greenleaf Whittier, the oration by Chauncey M. Depew, and an address by President Harrison, with benediction by Archbishop Corrigan.

A feature of these exercises will be the elaborate and tasteful decorations of the high south front of the sub-treasury. Free use will be made of floral chaplets surrounding the heavy granite pillars, with a lavish display of flags arranged in stands.

Visitors will gain access to the platform by several flights of stairs from the street, and the presidential party and other special guests will be received by the committee on literary exercises, after the services at St. Paul's, at the Pine street front and escorted through the sub-treasury building to the south porch. One of the last acts of the late Assistant Treasurer McCue was to give the committee free use of the facilities of the building on this occasion.

The sub-treasurer's private office will be used as a retiring room for the president and suite, and three other rooms will be used for the general purposes of the committee. In the president's room a collation will be served.

After the conclusion of the exercises the president will be driven to the reviewing stand, the military presenting arms as he passes. The other guests will be conveyed by special train on the Third avenue elevated to the Twenty-third street station, thence to be taken to their places on the reviewing stand.

Concerning the tickets for the grand stands this information has been issued:

The demand for tickets to seats on the various stands has been so great that all the seats have been disposed of except a few hundred. It is thought that all will be sold within the next two or three days.

Applications must be made in writing, or if personally accompanied by a reference, at the headquarters of the army committee at the Fifth Avenue hotel.

Only five tickets are sold to any one person. This restriction and the requirement of credentials is made for the purpose of stopping speculation in tickets and the purchase of seats by undesirable classes of persons.

Chicago Carpenters Preparing to Strike.

CHICAGO, April 10.—The carpenters on the one hand and the building contractors on the other are just now in a ferment of excitement. The former are organizing with a determination of obtaining better terms or bringing on a general strike. They are holding meetings in various parts of the city nightly and otherwise by committees, recruiting their unions from the ranks of non-union men. They claim that out of the 9,000 carpenters and joiners in the city fully 3,500 are organized and are loyal to the Carpenters' council. Further than this, the leaders say that the carpenters will be in the unions, fully 5,000 strong before the end of the present month.

A Cab Driver Terribly Beaten.

CHICAGO, April 10.—Three men, named Fred Konk, J. W. Taylor and J. O'Brien, went up to a cab driver named J. F. Schrieber, on Clark street, near Madison, about 3 o'clock in the morning and requested him to take them out to Fourth street. He refused to do so, thereupon they set upon him and gave him a terrible beating. The police were summoned to the spot, and, arresting the whole party, took them to the armory, where, at last accounts, Schrieber was lying unconscious. He was not expected to live.

Three Firemen Injured.

KOKOMO, Ind., April 10.—The Kokomo Boiler works, Lynch Bros., of Titusville, Pa., proprietors, have been nearly destroyed by fire. Loss about $10,000, nearly covered by insurance. A falling wall caught three firemen, Capt. John Conklin, Thomas Brown and Marshal Bennett, severely injuring them, possibly injuring them fatally.

A GATEMAN'S ERROR.

He Signaled a Street Car to Advance Into the Jaws of Death.

EVERY PASSENGER INJURED

Of the Fifteen Occupants Not One Escaped Harm and Two Will Die—The Gateman Arrested—Extensive Loss of Life Barely Averted.

JERSEY CITY, April 10.—A railroad accident that might have resulted in a large loss of life occurred in this city at 7 o'clock in the morning

A locomotive of the Pennsylvania railroad, running at nearly twenty miles an hour, crashed into a Hoboken horse car at the Grove street crossing.

There were fifteen people in the car, and the wildest terror and confusion reigned. They were all more or less hurt, and two will die of their injuries.

Following is a list of those most seriously wounded:

Henry Bock, of 56 Ferry street, Hoboken, a carpenter employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad company, fatally injured.

Thomas Spurr, 155 Washington street, Hoboken, a carpenter of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, fatally injured.

Charles Erickson, a laborer, of 50 Fifth street, Hoboken, ugly cut over his left eye and another on the right side of his face; internal injuries.

John H. Seiger, the driver of the car, escaped with only a serious contusion and a broken arm.

Michael Daly was at the crossing gates. He has been in the service of the company for many years. Ten minutes later he would have been relieved, as he had been on duty all night.

He saw an engine running toward the depot and lowered the gates just as car No. 145 of the Hoboken line, in charge of John H. Seiger, driver, and Henry Mincken, conductor, and crowded with passengers, reached the crossing.

The street cars always stop at the crossings, even when the gates are up, until the driver receives the signal to go ahead. When the eastbound engine had passed Daly raised the gates and signaled the driver to go on. He had neglected to look down toward the depot or he would have noticed an engine moving rapidly along the westbound track.

The horse car started, and the horses had barely cleared the west bound or first set of tracks, when the locomotive dashed into the car. It was fortunate that the car had not advanced a foot further, else the car would have been cut in twain and many would have been ground to death under the wheels of the engine. Instead the car was hurled from the engine's path and was thrown around so that it stood parallel with the tracks.

One-quarter of the car was demolished, every pane of glass was shattered and the passengers were showered with the fragments of glass and the broken timbers. Driver Seiger and two men who were standing on the front platform were hurled headlong into the street and one passenger was caught and squeezed in the debris.

Gateman Daly has been arrested. The horses escaped. They were released and dashed off at the top of their speed through Grove street.

Still Balloting for Senator.

PROVIDENCE, April 10.—The legislature met in joint session at noon today and cast the fifth ballot for United States senator, which resulted as follows:

Name.	Senate.	House.
Dixon	19	42
Westmore	8	25
Colt	1	8
Arnold (Dem.)	5	8
Goddard	0	4
Durfee	0	6
Horatio Rogers	0	1

Necessary for a choice, 52.

The ballot developed nothing new except the introduction by a single vote of Gen. Horatio Rogers into the contest. The legislature then adjourned.

A New Ground for Divorce.

TOLEDO, O., April 10.—Mrs. Belle E. Jacobs has brought suit against her husband, Edwin C., for divorce, on the ground that he is a chronic baseball crank. The case came up for hearing in the common pleas court, this city. Mrs. Jacobs testified that Edwin was a member of Wauseon Baseball club, at which city the parties reside, and that his entire time was spent on the green diamond. In winter, when the weather would not permit him to play ball, he amused himself by cutting the baseball columns out of the papers and pasting them in scrap books. Judge Pugsby took the case under advisement as umpire and will probably declare Jacobs out.

Mrs. Althouse Again Sleeping.

BUFFALO, April 10.—Mrs. Emma Althouse, the Attica sleeper, is in another long trance. She went to sleep on March 27 and has not awakened since. She has taken no nourishment since the 27th and is very weak. Her teeth are tightly closed, making it impossible to force the least particle of liquids or solids between them. Before falling into the present trance she predicted a long sleep, but did not state how long.

Crushed Him in a Wine Press.

VIENNA, April 10.—A wine store at Szil, Hungary, was entered Sunday night by thieves, who plundered the premises of everything valuable. The proprietor of the store surprised the robbers at their work and was seized and crushed to death in a wine press. The thieves afterwards got drunk, and were in an almost helpless state of inebriety when a few hours later they were arrested.

Searle to Sail for England.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., April 10.—Searle, the champion oarsman of Australia, will sail for England on the 4th of next month. When he arrives in England he will issue challenges to the oarsmen, Teemer and O'Connor, offering to row them for £500 each and the championship of the world, the contest to take place on the Thames.

Jumped from an Express Train.

BOSTON, April 10.—Benjamin F. Bowser, aged 50, a barber doing business in South Common street, Lynn, jumped from the Pullman express train of the Boston and Maine road at Lynn and was mangled to death. The top of his head was cut off. He leaves a widow and six children.

The Train Robbers Caught.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., April 10.—The men who a month ago robbed a train at Canyon Diablo have been captured. The sheriff telegraphs from Knaubeli that one was caught on the 1st instant, another on the 2d and two on the 4th, and that he is on his way to Milford, Utah, with his prisoners.

GOLD IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Rich Finds Reported in the Lower End of Bucks County.

PHILADELPHIA, April 10.—A special to a local paper says the discovery of gold in Bucks county has set the residents of the lower end of the county wild with excitement. Every man believes that he has a bonanza in his land, and prices have jumped to fabulous figures. The first alleged find was made on the grounds of the Spiritualists' association at Parkland, on the Bound Brook railroad, a few days ago.

Several months ago the association managers hired men to bore a deep artesian well in the central portion of their land. When the workmen reached a depth of forty-six feet Superintendent J. C. Shuster noticed that the strata had a peculiar light blue color. Picking up some dirt forced up through the sand pump he found a piece of peculiarly colored stone about the size of an egg. He took it to his home and laid it upon a shelf together with some other queer looking stones which he had collected as curiosities.

A few weeks ago he handed the stone to the treasurer of the association, W. H. Jones, who brought it to this city to be inspected. It reached the hands of a private assayer, who found that it contained a dollar's worth of gold. This news was carried to the association, which, immediately after the supposed discovery of an El Dorado on their real estate, resolved to stop selling stock. It is believed by the members of the association that gold is buried in large quantities in their land, which embraces 150 acres and is named Edgehill.

The farmers in the neighborhood are also under the impression that the precious metal is present in the strata which support their corn fields and farm houses. They claim that they have received offers for their farms 500 per cent. in advance of the value of the land as farms. The members of the Spiritualists' association have determined to prospect further for the precious metal, and they will not rest satisfied until they have had the greater part of their holdings dug up.

Near the place where gold is supposed to exist is a hill which formerly was known as "Mount Misery," but now the title has been changed to "Mount Joy," owing to the alleged find by a local Spiritualist of many good sized rubies in the clay. Between the gold and ruby fever the residents of the section are wild with excitement, and are looking forward to great riches.

Death of Dr. Von Lauer.

BERLIN, April .—Dr. Von Lauer, the late Emperor William's physician, is dead.

BRIEF MENTION.

The Susquehanna Iron company's mills, at Columbia, Pa., have been closed, as the employes refuse to accept a reduction in wages. The employes of the Columbia rolling mills have accepted a reduction.

The employes of the Westinghouse air brake works, at Pittsburg, have gone to work at reduced hours. The works have been pressed with orders, and for some time the employes worked time and half time, but under the new rule, in order to keep all the men employed, they would work only eight hours per day. About 1,000 men are affected by the change of hours.

By the municipal election in Trenton, Skirm, Republican, was elected mayor over Klein, Democrat, by a majority estimated at 500. Mr. Towers, Republican, defeated Mr. Carminade, Democrat, for school superintendent, by a majority estimated at 350. The Republicans carry eight out of eleven wards for city council.

The insurance on the Hubbard works in Pittsburg, destroyed by fire on Sunday, aggregated $305,200. The loss is placed at about $500,000.

A fire which started in Smithfield, N. C., on Sunday, and continued Monday, consumed nearly all the business part of the town and many residences. The loss is estimated at $90,000.

The Alden block, in Baldwinsville, N. Y., has been burned. Loss about $45,000; fully insured.

A fire in Middlesex township, near Carlisle, Pa., destroyed the Mansion house and several adjoining buildings with their contents. Cause, a defective flue.

At Massville, Pa., the building owned and occupied by James Harmer as a postoffice, store and dwelling was burned. All the mail matter, including some registered letters, were destroyed. The loss is unknown.

The Wilkesbarre Broom factory, in Wilkesbarre, Pa., has been destroyed by fire. Loss, $27,000.

Miss Ella White, a music teacher, has been arrested in Susquehanna, Pa., on the charge of defrauding various people in Elmira, N. Y., out of sums aggregating $15,000 on fictitious mining and silk mill stocks and other pretenses. She confessed that she lost the money in an Elmira "bucket shop."

The McClellandtown gang of robbers who have recently been terrorizing Fayette county, Pa., have transferred their outrages to the adjoining county of Preston, in West Virginia. There are six now in the gang, and they are reported to be depredating in the neighborhood of Glade Mills. The people have appealed to the neighboring town of Kingwood for help. The district is mountainous and thinly populated.

David Hodyshell, of Shermantown, Pa., left for Perry county several days ago with $400 to pay off his employes, and has not been heard of since then. It is supposed that he was murdered by tramps on the North mountain, near Carlisle, and his body hidden.

The Connecticut supreme court of errors has refused a new trial in the case of Jacob Sebell, the New Canaan murderer, under sentence to be hanged on May 23 for the murder of Constable Druker in January, 1888.

Mrs. Kline has been arrested in Bordentown, N. J., on the charge of placing rat poison in her husband's coffee. Kline is still under the doctor's care.

A Philadelphia lady has agreed to give to the Reformed Episcopal church of the United States for the advancement of the work of the church, by means of the church extension fund, $15,000 annually, and has set apart an amount sufficiently large to insure the payment of the sum in perpetuity.

In Pottsville, Pa., Judge Pershing refused a motion for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the mental condition of Pietro Baranovsky, convicted of the murder of Mrs. Putlavich and Agnes Kalch, at Bushy Tract, in May last. The execution will take place on May 6 next unless the governor interferes.

The storm did great damage at Norfolk, Va. Several vessels are ashore or in distress and many rescues were effected by the life saving crew.

Maj. Armes has written a piteous letter to Governor Beaver abjectly apologizing for his acts in Washington and begging the governor to save him from the disgrace of a court martial.

These deaths are among those reported: Doctor J. H. Kidder, of the Smithsonian institution, at Washington, D. C., aged 50; Judge H. W. Sheffey, at Staunton, Va., aged 77.

Finger Nails.

My son had a breaking out on his face as ringworm, then on his hands as tetter, then it came in spots on his back and hips. His finger nails seemed about to drop off, and his condition was alarming. Under treatment of physicians he grew worse for five years. He began to take S S S and the eruptions began to disappear. He continued to take it and every sign of the plague left him. He owes his restoration to Swift's Specific.

Three Bottles.

I regard S S S as a certain cure for Rheumatism, as three bottles cured me of that trouble with which I had been painfully afflicted for several years.

L. O WILLOFORD.
Rock Mills, S. C. Oct., 27, 1888.

Nine years ago Scrofula attacked two of my children and they were badly afflicted with that disease, which resisted the treatment of my family physician. I was persuaded to use Swift's Specific by seeing an account of cures in my county paper. The improvement was apparent from the first few doses, and in a short time my children were cured, and are still sound and well.

UNABLE TO TELL

Yes, that was so. For years I suffered severely with scrofula; sores broke out all over my body, and I am unable to tell one half that I suffered. I was not able to obtain relief untill I used Sulphur Bitters, which completely cured me. —C. B. DALE, 17 Allston street, Boston.

Judge George C. Wing

of Auburn, one of Maine's prominent lawyers, and for several years the Chairman of the Republican State Committee, was troubled with boils on the back of his neck in their worst form, resembling carbuncles. Three bottles of Brown's Sarsaparilla completely cured him, and now Judge Wing speaks in the highest praise of Brown's Sarsaparilla.

The long sought for remedy for spring lassitude has been found. Entirely free from the noxious alcohols, it is compounded of these ingredients which extended medical experience has proven to be the most potential in their effect upon the kidneys, liver and blood, and, unlike the common "spring medicines" with which the market is flooded, its effect is not only immediate, but enduring. No stronger evidence to this effect could be offered than the voluntary testimony to its virtues of men of the character and position of those whose names appear with their willing permission through all our works. Men, women and children alike can take it with safety and for ladies who are peculiarly susceptible to that tired feeling at this season of the year we advise the use of

'Every Spring.'

Says one of the best housewives in New England, "We feel the necessity of taking a good medicine to purify the blood, and we all take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It keeps the children free from ailments, my husband says it gives him a good appetite, and for myself I am sure I could never do all my work if it was not for this splendid medicine. It makes me feel strong and cheerful, and I am never troubled with headache or that tired feeling, as I used to be."

'Pshaw,' said a Sixteenth street lady to her husband, who had been criticising her attire, 'what does a man know about woman's clothing, anyway?' 'He knows the price, my dear,' he replied, gently, and she retired

The New Club Rooms.

On Saturday the suite of rooms to be occupied by the Bellefonte Club were formally opened for that purpose. The Club has been chartered and the members are now ready to enjoy themselves and take the world easy and comfortable. The rooms are elegantly located in the eastern wing of the Bush Arcade.

An ante-room or vestibule has been made for the special purpose of adding to the effect of entrance to the apartments. In this vestibule will be a large hat and coat rack and a receptacle for umbrellas. At the left is the billiard room, containing a handsome and completely appointed billiard table of modern make. There they will delightedly propell the spheres Two rooms further east and also opening from the hall are the reception, conversation and reading rooms. They communicate through double doors. They are most beautifully decorated with rich paper and terra cotta. The furniture is of antique oak, upholstered in very handsome style, and will receive many more additions. In the billiard room the floor is covered with linoleum and in this double apartment the floors are painted and covered all except the outer edge with rich Smyrna rugs. The table is supplied with literature of the highest character, a list of the publications regularly received being given below.

There is another room to be known as the card room. It will contain several card tables and also is provided with appliances for lavratory purposes.

Altogether, the rooms afford an exceedingly pleasant place of resort and we hope the gentlemen will enjoy their beauties and comforts. A short time ago the Club was organized by the election of the following officers :

President—Robert Valentine.
Vice President—George Potts.
Secretary—Walter Graham.
Treasurer—Jno. L Kurtz.

Board of Managers—The President, Vice President and Secretary as given above and also L L Brown, W R Jenkins, Dr. Geo. Harris and L T Munson.

The remarkably fine list of publications spread upon the table includes the following: Nation, Forest and Stream, North American Review, Harper's Magazine, Littell's Living Age, Popular Science Monthly, Century, Nineteenth Century, Scientific American, New York Times, New York Tribune, Philadelphia Times, Philadelphia Press, Philadelphia Evening Telegram, Puck, Judge and Bellefonte Daily News.

Happened in Pennsylvania.

There is a story which is said happened in this State, the particular locality not being mentioned :

The telegraph brings us a very touching story from Pennsylvania of a man who returned to his native town from out West after an absence of thirty years. To test the affection of his long-unknown relatives, he dressed himself like a tramp, entered the factory of his brother-in-law, who recognized him, complained of poverty and old age and desired a place where he could be cared for. The brother-in-law took him home with him, where his sister met him with joy and assured him that his home should be with them. Thanking his sister and brother-in-law with tears in his eyes, he reached into his boot and pulled out a roll of greenbacks, then into his waistbelt and produced a handful of gold and more greenbacks, then into his pockets and evolved more money until he had displayed to the eyes of his astonished relatives several thousand dollars, whereupon he retired from the scene, got washed and shaved and appeared clothed and in his right mind.

A Chandelier Falls in Church.

On Sunday evening, just before the usual service, an accident happened in the Baptist church in Milesburg. The lamps in the central chandelier had been lighted, but only a few people had assembled. Suddenly the chandelier parted at the ceiling and fell with a crash upon the pews below. Fortunately no one was beneath it at the time. The lamps exploded and the blaze threatened to be quite destructive. Fortunately, however, prompt efforts were made to extinguish the fire and the only damage was the scorching of the seats.

A Card of Thanks.

To the members of the Logan Hose Company :

The charter members of the A. O. U. W. extend their hearty thanks to the members of the Logan Hose Company for the use of their room, for the purpose of effecting temporary arrangements for the organization of the Lodge, and that a copy be sent to the company and the same be published in the daily press.

J. H. OLIGER, Sec.

—Plenty of elegant entertainments are proposed fo the near future in Bellefonte. The Presbyterians are planning to hold a concert participated in by local talent The Y. M. C. A. will hold a series of festivals and the ladies of the Episcopal church have the opportunity of procuring the Mendelsohn Quintette Club of Boston. Whether they do so or not is simply a question—will it pay ?

—A great many people were called out by the alarm of fire on Sunday about 1.30 o'clock. The flames were extinguished by a couple buckets of water being thrown on them. It would have made a destructive fire had it gained headway as the wind was quite high. It was Bellefonte's first fire alarm since last November.

Withdrawn.

District Passenger agent Thomas E. Watt, Pittsburg, of the Pennsylvania railroad, has received notice from General Passenger agent J. R. Wood, that the special rate of 2 cents per mile allowed a party of ten or more persons when traveling on one ticket, has been withdrawn. The rate had only been in effect about two weeks.

The withdrawal of the rate is another clear evidence that the Pennsylvania railroad is going to keep on the safe side of the Inter-State-law. When the rate was issued it was a question whether it was a violation of the law or not. The commission has apparently decided that it is, and parties traveling on one ticket will now have to pay full tariff rates.

The action of the Pennsylvania road will be followed by the Baltimore and Ohio.

Stanley in Africa.

Stanley is, of course, well understood to be the agent of England in Africa and certainly England could not have a more capable and energetic man to look after its affairs in a quarter of the globe toward the partition of which among themselves various European powers are now straining every energy, each in its own way. All are fighting the Arabs, and it is by no means unlikely that before long they will be fighting each other and in such an emergency England will have in Stanley a possible Clive, to do for her there the work that that great commander did for her in India.

—The Clearfield Band and firemen who went on a raft from their home to Lock Haven arrived the day after the Hand-in-hand ball. But a dance was gotten up for their benefit on Friday evening. They returned home on Saturday—not on a raft, but in the cars, and as they passed through Bellefonte they stopped at the station and gave the DAILY NEWS office a serenade. Mr. W. A. Brown of Spring Mills was with them.

WHAT IS SCROFULA

It is that impurity in the blood, which, accumulating in the glands of the neck, produces unsightly lumps or swellings; which causes painful running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which developes ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often causing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or the many other manifestations usually ascribed to "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. Being the most ancient, it is the most general of all diseases or affections, for very few persons are entirely free from it.

How Can It Be CURED

By taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, by the remarkable cures it has accomplished, often when other medicines have failed, has proven itself to be a potent and peculiar medicine for this disease. Some of these cures are really wonderful. If you suffer from scrofula, be sure to try Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"My daughter Mary was afflicted with scrofulous sore neck from the time she was 22 months old till she became six years of age. Lumps formed in her neck, and one of them after growing to the size of a pigeon's egg, became a running sore for over three years. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla, when the lump and all indications of scrofula entirely disappeared, and now she seems to be a healthy child." J. S. CARLILE, Nauright, N. J.

100 Doses One Dollar

Lessons from Cornelius.

The presence of Rev. A. D. Whitmer in the Reformed church, on Sunday, was exceedingly edifying to the congregations that assembled to hear him. His remarks in the morning were on the subject of missions. His evening sermon also touched on that subject, and the lessons drawn were all from the story of Cornelius as found in the 10th chapter of the Acts. The chapter, he said, was rich in practical suggestions. We cannot recall all that he gave in his brief and interesting talk, but a few of them recur prominently to our mind.

He showed that Christ's religion is a Catholic, universal religion—which had never before been claimed for any religion. This was proven by the net which was let down containing all sorts of unclean things. It must be proclaimed by man, as an angel could not, for the reason that an angel cannot have sympathy with humanity. The tenderest and sweetest feature of our religion, he said, is the humanity of Christ.

Even the best and most moral man must make confession by uniting with the church. What better example have we of strict morality and upright life than Cornelius ?

There is only one way into the church of Christ. There is only one direction to the North Star, but ten thousand directions lead from it.

—During nearly all the past winter Hon. John A. Woodward, of Howard, has been making a tour of New York State, where he has been delivering addresses to Farmers' clubs and other agricultural assemblies. We believe he has been under a stated and very remunerative salary in this business. In the largest places where his addresses were delivered the newspapers have praised his speeches in the highest terms. He is also one of the regular editors of an important agricultural paper in Philadelphia. In Mr. Woodward our county has a citizen who is adding greatly to its excellent name abroad and consequntly we have reason to be very proud of him.

—The Phildelphia Ledger calls attention to the fact that the loss of life in Stanley's exploration surpasses that of the most disastrous of the Artic Polar expeditions. "In our felicitations about Stanley's safety," says the Ledger "and our pride in his fame as an American explorer surpassing all predecessors in his renown, let us not cease to remember that he expected to find Emin famished and in tatters and to be able to relieve him; but it was the reliever who fell into famine and tatters before he got to the object to be relieved."

—Experience has taught me that it is best to keep all oil or grease from the hair. Don't let the barbers oil it. I find wetting with water best. At least once a week rub the yolk of an egg, or half of it, well into the hair and scalp, and rinse off thoroughly with tepid water. It will promote growth and color, probably largely due to the sulphur in the egg. This course has started a new growth of hair which, while not very thick is better than none at all.—Scientific American.

—Altoona Times: It is pretty well settled now that the Pennsylvania Railroad people are not in love with the big English-built locomotive engine with which they have been experimenting, in this and parts adjacent, and will not duplicate the order. American mechanics can do better work on this class of machinery than the English, and can easily supply the home demand and have some work over to send abroad to less favored nations.

—Thomas R. Benner, a brother of Mrs. Ruth Armor of this place died on the 2d instant at his home in Tuscaranwas county, Ohio, in the 86th year of his age. He was related to many of the prominent families of this locality.

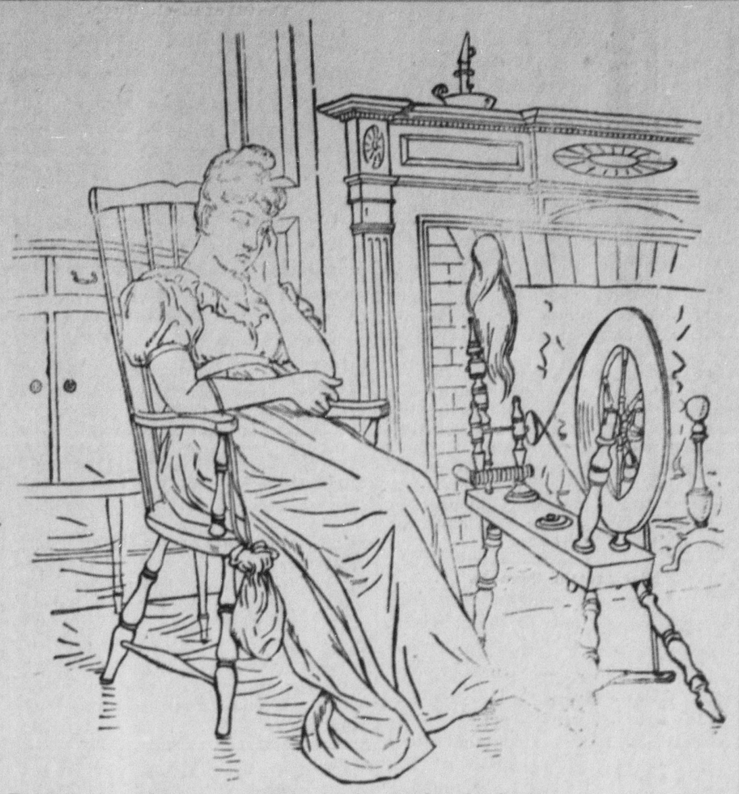
—From Tyrone Daily Herald of Saturday: "John Blakey, the young man who sports the big diamonds and other precious stones around the Ward House barber shop, yesterday crawled out of his teens and in honor of his twentieth birthday anniversary hied himself away to Bellefonte where he made the hearts of certain colored damsels go pit-a-pat. John was at his post to-day but all broke up."

—It is gratifying to know that the fears expressed by Mr. Barrett touching the indisposition of Edwin Booth were exaggerated. Mr. Booth insists that he did not suffer a paralytic stroke in Rochester, but that he was temporarily prostrated by excessive indulgence in tobacco. He expects to be able to resume his place on the stage next week.

—Charles Green's house caught fire on Sunday from a defective flue. No damage.



PRISCILLA spinning, long ago, sighs as she thinks how soon her linen Will lose its glossy luster, when the wash it once or twice has been in. She does not know that in the soap the evil lies that makes it suffer. Its great excess of alkali, which cuts the fiber, makes it rougher.

Our modern maidens need not sigh since IVORY SOAP has been invented, Containing no free alkali—by which the ruin is prevented. For linen washed with IVORY SOAP in snowy beauty'll ne'er diminish, But always, while it lasts, preserve its pristine gloss and lustrous finish.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

From the Chicago Tribune.

"It grieves me to give you pain, Mr Ferguson, but I fear it can never be. Try, try to forget me."

"I will try, Miss Laura," replied the young man, in a melancholy, hopeless way, "Absorbed in the vortex of business, as I shall be henceforth, I may be able to still the clamor of my aching heart, and banish your sweet image from my mind,

"Then you contemplate going into business?"

"I have made arrangements," he said in a hollow voice, "to open a large retail confectionery store."

"Oh, George!" exclaimed the beautiful girl wildly, as she flung herself in to his arms, "the sight of your suffering is more than I can bear. I am yours!"

ST. JACOBS OIL

TRADE  MARK

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR PAIN

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

UTTERLY HELPLESS AND CURED.

PROMPTLY.

The "St. Louis Post-Dispatch" says: "Mrs. Phebe Rice, 1208 Madison Street, states that for the past seven years she had been a sufferer from acute inflammatory rheumatism, which had affected the muscles of the hands, contracting them so badly she could not comb her hair, hold a needle or pick up a pin, and rendered the lower limbs so helpless she required crutches to move about. During ten months she was obliged to carry the right hand in a sling.

PERMANENTLY.

"A single application of St. Jacobs Oil, she said, made her a firm believer in its virtues, as the effect was instantaneous and she was greatly benefited. The continued use of it brought her to the happy condition in which the reporter saw her, with the free use of her limbs and in perfect health—cured. She can now run up and down stairs, she said, and her hands were as useful in every respect as they had been before she began to suffer, seven years ago."

THE PRICE.—The best always first and cheapest. The best is the promptest, safest, surest, most permanent. The benefits are beyond price. St. Jacobs Oil is the best.

TWO SOCIAL EVENTS.

77th Birthday Anniversary Joyfully Celebrated—Also a Surprise Party of Many Young People.

FULL PARTICULARS OF THE TWO GATHERINGS.

In the several social events of Thursday evening almost every one in Bellefonte was in some way interested. The of Mrs. Martha W. Miller on Howard street, was an occasion of great interest and pleasure, not only to the venerable lady in whose honor it was, but also to the large number of friends who shared in the festivities. A lady who has had so very many birthdays of course does not attach so much importance to them, and this 77th anniversary of her birth might have passed almost unnoticed had not others remembered it in a substantial and pleasing manner. When the evening train from Huntingdon brought gifts of flowers and other more enduring and valuable mementoes she remembered that the day marked another annual milestone, but the unusual demonstration of the evening was to her a great and delightful surprise. At 7.30 o'clock troops of her nearest friends came thronging into the house, each one wishing her a continuance of the bright and happy old age which is largely her portion. The company was composed of the following: Mrs. Wm. P. Wilson, Mrs. Harriet Linn, Mrs. Sarah Potter, Mrs. Lucy Moyer, Mrs. Jacob Heylmun, Mrs. J Butts, James Potter and wife, Mrs. John B Linn, Mrs. Cyrus Weaver, Mrs. David Weaver, Mrs. Rev. Hayden, Mrs. Fearon Mann, Mrs. Henry Harris, James Harris and wife, Mrs. Kase, Mrs. Aaron Williams, Miss Mary McClanahan, Miss Lucy Potter, Miss Macmanus, Miss Scoby, Miss Mary Ann Magill, Miss Macbride, Miss Owen, Miss Slaymaker, Miss Galbraith, Master Donald Potter and Miss Daisy Potter.

77TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY

The visitors left behind them numerous valuable and beautiful gifts, and the remembrance of the occasion which these mementoes will revive to her mind will add many hours of even greater pleasure than would otherwise be the case. The refreshments were exceedingly choice. Mrs. Miller lives with her son, Mr. John C Miller, on Howard street. Since coming here from Huntingdon, not very long ago, her amiability, sweet disposition and high intelligence have attracted around her a great many admiring friends. The company spent two hours and a half of complete enjoyment, separating at the hour of 10 o'clock. They aver that no happier occasion has ever transpired in their experience.

A LARGE COMPANY.

of young people met on Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Mitchell Leib. From there they went to the home of Mrs. Barr. There were about eighty-five in all of the most congenial young people. Their arrival was a complete and very happy surprise to the hostess, who is a popular and highly esteemed lady, who with her attractive daughter united in entertaining the guests. They provided delicious refreshments, the partaking of which formed the usual important part of the festivities. Every sort of popular and pleasing diversion filled in the hours which passed merrily and rapidly along until the mystic and witching hour of midnight bade them separate and repair to their homes. These surprise gatherings are fruitful of more enjoyment than can be expressed in a brief account and will ever remain pleasing recollections to those who participated.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years Doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F J Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucus surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F J Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

—How about the arrangements to celebrate the Fourth? It is a long time since Bellefonte has celebrated extensively and the Logan hose boys, who hesitate at nothing, should begin at once. We doubt not that Burgess Brouse will co-operate with them and give Bellefonte a great celebration.

—Seven cans of young trout from the State hatching house at Curry were brought by way of Lock Haven on Thursday over the Bald Eagle road to Bellefonte, Unionville and Tyrone. At Lock Haven an employe from the hatching house stood by the cans all night at the depot, giving each can a shake occasionally in order to distribute a fresh supply of air through the water. The young trout are one month old and swam about in the clear water at a lively rate.

Undeservedly Laughed At.

The unthinking are prone to make game of nervousness. Yet this is a very real and serious affliction, the harassing symptoms of which are rendered all the more poignant by ridicule. The stomach is usually responsible for these symptoms—its weakness and disorder find a reflex in the brain, which is the headquarters of the nervous system. As a nerve tonic and tranquilizer, we believe that not one can be pointed out so effective as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. In renewing vigorous digestion, it strikes the key note of recovery of strength and quietude by the nerves. Headaches, tremors in quiet sleep, abnormal sensitiveness to unexpected noises—all these modify and ultimately disappear as the system gains strength from the great tonic. Dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatism, constipation and kidney complaints are subdued by the Bitters.

New Use for Peanuts.

We have always supposed that nuts were indigestible, but Dr. Theodore B. Lyman, Episcopal Bishop of North Carolina, says that in his case they promote sleep. He says of them:

"I think I have made a very valuable discovery, and I am anxious that others should also enjoy the benefit of it. For nearly two years I have been suffering greatly from sleeplessness at night. I have tried a great number of proposed remedies, some of which have helped me a little, but not for any length of time. A little more than a fortnight ago, while staying at the house of a friend in the country, my good hostess brought into the parlor a bountiful supply of freshly-roasted peanuts. As I am very fond of them, I ate quite freely of the nuts, and soon after retired to bed. I found the next morning that I had enjoyed the best sleep I had experienced for over a month. I attributed this at once to the peanuts, and determined to try them again the next evening. I did so, and also drank a glass of fresh, sweet milk after I had finished the peanuts. That night I slept still better, and now, for a fortnight, I have partaken of the peanuts and the milk every night, and have not only slept remarkably well, but have also fully recovered from a slight attack of indigestion which had troubled me before."

Beautiful Law Offices

The legal apartments occupied by Hastings & Reeder have been metamorphosed in magnificent style and are now truly royal rooms, reflecting back the art of the painter and paper hanger from all the broad surface of walls and from every nook and corner.

The paper is exceedingly tasteful in pattern and elegant in design, rich in golden figures and tints. The rear room has also been refurnished and is now covered with a beautiful, soft carpet with a judicious selection of comfortable sofas and luxurious chairs.

In the taste displayed in making these improvements Mr. Reeder was doubtless aided by his agreeable wife. They certainly take rank among the finest apartments of the kind in Bellefonte, and are truly worth the inspection of all who desire to look at beautiful rooms. We notice that the firm have a new law student to correspond with their rooms in the person of Mr. Quigley of Eagleville.

A Sound Legal Opinion.

E. Bainbridge, Munday Esq., County Atty, Clay Co. Texas, says: "Have used Electric Bitters with most happy results. My brother also was very low with Malarial Fever and Jaundice, but was cured by timely use of this medicine. Am satisfied Electric Bitters saved his life."

Mr. D. I Wilcoxson of Horse Cave, Ky., adds a like testimony, saying: He positively believes he would have died had it not been for Electric Bitters.

This great remedy will ward off as well as cure all Malarial Diseases, and for all Kidney, Liver and Stomach Disorders stands unequaled. Price 50c, and $1 at W. C. Keplinger & Co's store.

Nothing phenomenal about it because the cause of each was evident, while it is a "sight" which can be witnessed every year by anyone who will keep his eyes open.

—Lock Haven had an extensive firemen's demonstration. The Hand-in-hand boys, of that place, were joined by quite a number of visiting firemen in a parade and ball. The Clearfield band and firemen journeyed from Clearfield to Lock Haven on a raft. The demonstration was considered an event of importance in that city.

The Oil of Black Birch.

Thursday there was sent from Norwich Conn., to New York, five two-gallon tin cans filled with the oil of black birch, which was manufactured in Bozrah, by John Miner. It is worth $80 a gallon, and the five cans contained 158 pounds of oil, valued at $800, or a litile over $5 a pound.

We hope all the farmers will not be led into extracting the oil of the black birch tree by this agreeable opening presentation of values. Black birch trees do not yield oil as the maple tree runs sap. There is work in getting the tender twigs, and labor in the process of extracting the oil. One ton of twigs yields just three pounds of oil, and it took nearly fifty-three tons of twigs to yield the ten gallons. This oil is used in giving the winter green flavor to confections of all sorts.

—We have not yet seen the new moon though it appeared last Sunday.

—The Philadelphia Press surpassed all other papers in printing Stanley's letter in full the day after it was received.

—The bill appropriating $85,000 to the State Normal School at Lock Haven finally passed the House on Thursday,

—Governor Beaver has issued a proclamation that Friday, the 26th day of April, will be observed as Arbor day.

—A bill has passed second reading in the Legislature forbidding the sale of cigarettes to persons under 16 years of age.

—The fellow named Armes, who attempted to pull Governor Beaver's nose while the latter was in Washington, is to be court martialed and disgraced.

—The little German band which made the atmosphere vibrate with sweetness in this place on Friday was a vast improvement on the one which was here a week previous.

—The College musicians ended their concert tour in Altoona on Thursday evening and returned on Friday flushed with victory. They awoke the echoes with their college yell when they arrived at the Bellefonte depot.

—What's the matter with the actors? Their health seems to be failing quite rapidly. What is there in the profession to produce the general decline so prevalent? There was Mr. McCollough, Miss Anderson and now Edwin Booth.

—The bill has been passed finally by the Legislature which fixes the weight of a ton of anthracite coal at 2240 pounds and imposes a penalty against underweight. The Bellefonte dealers always give full weight, but let those of other communities beware.

—Mr. A. B. Steele informs us that some time during the latter part of this month there will be a Knights of Labor lecture in this place. If the weather is fine it will be delivered out-doors; if otherwise it will likely be in the Court House. A week's notice of it will be given.

—In Huntingdon county since no licenses have been given to sell liquors, there has been a marked reduction in criminal offenses and also in court expenses and a decided falling off in penitentiary convicts; and there has been a marked improvement in the condition of the poorer people.

—It was announced that transportation had been secured by Adjutant General Hastings for the National Guard to New York for the Washington centennial. Two brigades, the First and Third, will go over the Philadelphia and Reading line, and the Second over the Pennsylvania railroad.

—The Philadelphia Press is the ablest and newsiest paper in the United States and seems to be constantly improving. It is also meeting with wonderful success. We do not think that any one who takes a city paper can afford to do without the Press. Remember that the weekly Press is given in connection with the Bellefonte Republican for the same price, in advance, that is charged for the Republican alone.

—A young gentleman who attended the surprise party on Thursday evening said he did not reach home until 3 o'clock Friday morning and where he was between midnight and 3 a. m. he does not recollect. He remarked that he was weary and his arms especially tired. Why his arms should feel the effect in such a marked manner may be conjectured, but we feel constrained to repeat the question we asked last week, viz., Girls, does it hurt to be hugged?

—It is reported that Rev. David Winters is about to sever his connection with the Second Presbyterian church of Williamsport and go to Wichita, Kansas. In Kansas, it is hoped, he will find a less aristocratic congregation over which to minister. We understand that the congregation's complaint of their pastor was that he influenced too many poor people to unite with the church. The next move of the Second Presbyterian Williamsport congregation should be an application to the great Head of the Church for a special row of Heavenly mansions on an exclusive street in the celestial city.

—Venus is evening star until the 30th, when she closes her brilliant career and disappears from the western sky. She is not lost, however, but reappears on the sun's western side as morning star, where for the next 292 days she will pass through the same phase in reversed order as have marked her course as evening star. The planet during the month when viewed through the telescope is a beautiful crescent, becoming larger, sharper and thinner as she approaches the earth. A few mortals have seen Venus with the naked eye in crescent form. Venus sets on the 1st at 9h. 27m. p. m. On the 30th she rises at 4h. 19m. a. m.

I have went through two grammars and can't say they did me no good—I prefer Mattie to ingage in German and drawing and vocal music on the piano."

HOWARD KICKING.

DEPARTURES, MOVINGS, WEDDINGS, SICKNESS, PREACHERS AND A GREAT HUBBUB ABOUT THE POST OFFICE

Shuman Pletcher has gone to Shintown, Clinton Co., to assist in constructing a dwelling.

Ephriam Dietz, one of our industrious young men, has secured employment for the summer at Quay, Elk Co., Pa.

John Strickland is profitably employed at Irvona, Clearfield Co., and James Hogan has not located yet.

Nathaniel Green Pletcher has purchased the Rudy Pletcher homestead below town.

Mrs. Jonathan Schenck had another attack of illness, from which she is slowly recovering.

W. E. Confer has moved his tonsorial parlors and notion store to opposite the depot, where he is ready to wait on all customers.

Nelson Askey, formerly of this place, but now a resident of Williamsport is still confined to his room from a long illness.

William Lucas, of the firm of Lucas Brothers, is in the city purchasing spring goods.

Rev. Nathan Schenck, who was returned the fourth year to Hughesville, preached an interesting sermon in the Evangelical church last Sunday.

Rev. J. W. Thompson, the Evangelical preacher on this circuit, gives general satisfaction to his people.

Daniel Leathers, formerly of this place, but now a resident at Curwensville, whilst on his way to Harrisburg as delegate to the State Convention of Knights of Golden Eagle, stopped off here over Sunday to see his mother, Mrs. J. W. Gardner.

The hours of labor for the track hands on the B. E. Valley R. R., have been reduced from ten to eight, commencing April 1st. As the company pay by the hour, this reduces the wages to eighty-eight cents per day. This reduction of wages is all wrong and out of place and should be stopped.

Mrs. Susie Long is very ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. James Kane and Miss Maggie Holter, two of Howard's popular young people, were bound in holy wedlock at the residence of the bride's father, B. F. Holter, on the 4th inst. The happy couple have the best wishes of this journal for a happy and prosperous voyage down life's stream.

Our popular livery proprietor, Mr. Will McClintick, was married on the 2d inst., to Miss Susie Sigmond, of Salona, Clinton, Co. Mrs. Stitzer, and Messrs. Art Schenck and Walter Cooke were some of the guests from this place who witnessed the happy event, when two loving hearts were made to beat as one.

The average Republican here has got his back up, and to assert that he is as mad as a March hare is drawing it mildly. It is all about a rumor that Senator Don Cameron was going to appoint a lady, resident out of town, Post mistress of Howard. Such an act, the republicans declare, would be treason and destructive to the best interests of the party. If the appointment is made Cameron's scalp will dangle from the outer wall.

—The letter from Stanley, the African explorer, was written eight months ago and there has been abundant time and opportunity, since it was written, for the intrepid traveler to have been eaten up by the inhabitants of the Dark Continent. We do not gather from his letter exactly what benefit his travels will be to the world. To be sure his detailed account, if his notes or recollections are ever published, may be of value. His story, from beginning to end, is a continuous narrative of journeys through forests, fights with the natives, etc. Of the peculiarities of the people, the kind of forests, he says nothing. Of course it was a fearfully arduous and dangerous trip and he ended with scarcely a third as many men as when he began. Some were killed, many died of disease and many deserted. It seems strange that any should desert. One would think that any person starting on such an expedition would have fully counted the cost and be prepared for anything. They should be men who are tried, reliable, and trustworthy. The most interesting statement in this narrative is that relating to the high mountain which he discovered. It is 18,000 feet high and its top covered with snow. But he makes a mistake when he says that it may be the same as Gorden Bennett mountain discovered a long time ago.

—The necessary repairs are in progress in the Y M C A building this week and this week it is open for all the different purposes for which it is to be devoted. On the lower floor in front, the double room will be used as a place for conversation and reading. It is equipped with literature, a writing desk, stationery, etc., Further back is a boys' reading room. The boys can enter this from the street through the hall without passing through the reading room. It will also contain a table, chairs and some suitable literature. On the second floor is a large room which will accomodate about one hundred persons. There is also a small room which can be utilized for a committee room and yet another which may be used for some one of the various purposes so convenient in such an Association. The building seems about as well adapted to the Association as is possible in a structure of its limited dimensions. The friends of the Association, who may call next week during the evening, will be welcomed by Mr. G Wash Rees, who will be pleased to show the building and explain more fully the work that is to be done there.

For Shame!

The editor of the Lock Haven Daily Democrat copies some license figures from a Williamsport paper to show that the money from liquor licenses would, if continued, soon pay the county debt. Then the Democrat suggests that the same result would be attained in Clinton county.

Could anything be more despisable than such a suggestion? There is no effort to prove whether the business is right in itself, but only the revenue consideration held out for the people. An appeal to their love of gold at the expense, perhaps, of principle!

Is not that the same spirit which led Esau to sell his birthright for nothing? Or, if the business is wrong, as is so successfully urged, is it not like Judas selling his Master for 30 pieces of silver, to thus urge its continuance because of a supposed gain, which, however, by some is said to be actual loss.

As sensible gentlemen, conservators of the good and welfare of the people, as leaders of public sentiment, the gentlemen of the press should not ask the voters to sell their principles for money. If the business can be justified advocate its continuance as a matter of right, but despise an appeal to their cupidity.

—This item in reference to Mr. Isaac Gray, who recently died at Half Moon, this county, is from the "Warriorsmark Waifs" in the Altoona Tribune: The relatives and friends of Mr. Isaac Gray were sorry to hear of his death. He has two sisters residing in this township-Mrs. James Love and Mrs. A C Hutchinson. Isaac wanted to live till the Gray's Methodist church was dedicated, but God saw fit to call him home. He gave largely of his means to build this church, but he is in a church not made with hands, one where there is no pain or death. He was a great sufferer, having had consumption for years. He leaves a wife, three daughters and two brothers—Samuel T Gray, of Half Moon, and John Gray, of Beaver Falls. Three sisters also survive him, one of whom resides in Harrisburg. The funeral was largely attended, the interment being made in Gray's cemetery, near his home.

Oklahoma—What is it?

Oklahoma, as outlined by the President's proclamation, is a tract of land about one hundred miles square, lying a little northwest of the centre of Indian Territory. It was formerly the property of the Creek and Seminole Indians, having been granted to them as a reservation, but they afterwards sold it back to the government. The Kansas settlers have looked upon it with longing eyes ever since it came back into the hands of the government, but it has been necessary to repeatedly drive them out by force of arms. It appears to have been the settled belief of several administrations that it would not be wise to allow its settlement by the whites owing to the proximity of the Indian tribes on adjoining reservations. However, that has finally been done and on the 22d of April there will be a grand rush into the new country.

—On Tuesday night a burglar entered the house of L. T. Isett at Spruce Creek. When Mrs. Isett awakened she saw the burglar and commanded him to leave. He did so, but carried away with him numerous valuables, among which were: Two dresses, two pocket books, one containing $85 and the other $5 and a $55 certificate; a jewelry case, containing a $125 Elgin watch, five pairs of bracelets four breast pins and other smaller pieces of jewelry. The watch has on the inside the name L. T. Isett and the monogram of same name on the outside, also a ruby and diamond set on chain. The jewelry was valued at $300. Quite a big haul. Look out for him.

—The wisdom of April is thus given: Latin, Aprilis, probably derived from Aperire, to open, because spring generally begins and the buds open in this month. Another derivation has been found in the dedication of this month by the Romans to Venus, goddess of buds and beauty, whose name in Greek was Aphrodite, whence Aphrilis or Aprilis. On ancient monuments Aprilis appears as a dancing youth with a rattle in his hand, thus symbolizing the gay and jocund spirit of spring.

—The average individual is exceedingly apt to jump at conclusions. No one discovers this more quickly than the local reporter. People are confident that a certain thing has happened and tell the reporter just why it is thus and so. Then they expect their conclusions to be announced as an actual realization in the next issue of the paper. Meanwhile, the reporter goes to headquarters for definite information and, nine times out of ten, finds that the occurrence was merely in imagination.

—An Ohio man found in his family Bible a check on the old Farmers and Mechanics' Bank of Steubenville, dated December 19, 1821. There are many valuable things in the Bible, if its possessor would only search the book.

MR. JAMES HAMILTON.

EIGHTY-FIVE YEARS OLD FRIDAY, BUT STILL ENJOYING THE BEST HEALTH AND QUITE YOUTHFUL ACTIVITY.

Mr. James Hamilton, who is known to almost everyone in this vicinity, was last Friday eighty-five years of age. People who saw and heard him either Thursday or Friday would not have imagined, however, that he was any older than the average individual seen upon the streets. On Thursday he walked all over his large farm and gave general directions about work and to-day, as the fact of his birthday anniversary was remembered, he talked with much animation and recalled incidents of "ye olden time" which were intensely interesting and show a wonderful memory.

Mr. Hamilton was born at Pine Grove, this county. Quite early in life he came to this vicinity and worked for the iron firm of Boggs & Royal, which was the company which preceded the Valentines, who came to this county in 1815. He worked for this firm [the Messrs. Valentine] during fifteen years, was their manager during ten years and afterwards clerked for them. In those early days he used to clean the ore with a hand sieve. He hauled the ore in wagons all the way from here to Pittsburg, fording the creek at Tyrone which oftentimes was dangerously and threateningly high.

Mr. Hamilton did not have the advantage of attending the public schools, but he did manage to gain some of the knowledge of the schools by attending a night class. His other education has been acquired by his unaided efforts.

He has five children most of whom are residents of this vicinity, their family circle having been unbroken by death—truly a rare occurrence. The daughters are Mrs. S. H. Williams, Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. John Noll and Mrs. Satterfield—the last mentioned living at Middlesex, Pa. The son is Mr. Abe Hamilton.

We are sure it is the wish of everyone that Mr. Hamilton's superb health and vigor may be continued many years to come.

Landlord McMillen in Dayton, Ohio.

The many friends of Mr. C. G. McMillen, formerly proprietor of the Brockerhoff House, will be anxious to learn of his welfare, which leads us to give part of the contents of a letter recently received from Mr. John T. Lucas, of Dayton, Ohio. He says that Mr. McMillen has been in Dayton since the early part of last fall. At first he was assistant manager of the Beckle House and soon afterwards became the proprietor of a commodious hotel known as the Dickey House on the corner of Sixth and Ludlow streets, near the Union depot. The hotel was completely renovated by him and is substantially a new establishment. It is in the most public part of the city and is very convenient of access. Every department of his hotel excels. Consequently it is crowded with guests who enjoy a hospitality and kind attention which Mr. McMillen understands so well how to give. Bellefonters who chance to be tarrying in Dayton, Ohio, will be sure to hunt up the Dickey House and its genial proprietor because they know him of old.

—The Daily Journal, of Philipsburg, announces the departure of Mr. William Lehman from that place. He will tarry in this place for a while before going to his future home in Philadelphia. The Journal records the change as follows: "One of our most enterprising merchants has resolved on removing from our city and steer his course to the city of Philadelphia, where we understand he will finally settle. Mr. William Lehman, who has been a good citizen among us for the past ten years intends leaving Philipsburg to-morrow, making Bellefonte his place of stay for a short time. We regret to announce Will's resolve, but we are satisfied that he will make a host of friends, and he leaves our city with the best wishes of a large circle of intimate acquaintances that prosperity might be his wherever he goes."

—The last item of news from the laboratory is that the deadliest of bacteria live and multiply on the bank notes that we handle. Probably there is not a viler article that we ever touch than a bank note. Carried in the pockets of the most leprous and loathsome, it passes through the pocket of the refined. We would not think of taking a pocket handkerchief that had made any such round without washing and fumigating. We could not be induced to put on the shirt of a tramp, but the money of the diseased and contaminated goes without a thought into our inner pockets. What disease we hug we do not think or care.

—Mr. M R Spazzoli, the secretary of the New York Cremation Society, says the technical obeticles which formerly interfered with cremation are all removed, and the work of reducing a body to ashes is now accomplished in less than two hours. "There now come to the crematory," he says, "the bodies of those who in life were strictly religious,' and the ministers of their churches bless the urns as they used to bless the graves. He says that an incineration does not offend any creed and ignores caste—treating all alike—there is nothing which can be brought against it, either by scoffers or skeptics.

Local Department.

—We take small interest now in coal,
In Lehigh, Cumberland or Cannel;
The subject that excites the soul
Is these bright days in tennis flannel.

—To day is thirteen hours long.

—New spring goods fill the stores.

—Rural schools are ready to close.

—Fine apples are yet in the market.

—Are your garden vegetables growing?

—Will the Easter cards be beautiful?

—The moon was quarter full on Monday.

—Farmers report that the grain is fine.

—The temperature is very cold at night.

—This is very delightful Spring weather.

—That "museum of anatomy" is now in Tyrone.

—April is the last oyster month for the season.

—Every puff of wind carries clouds of dust with it.

—The summer circus is not yet booked for Bellefonte.

—The moon was charmingly bright on Monday night.

—Garden digging is a popular outdoor occupation.

—It is time to inaugurate the local base ball season.

—The mew-cus membrane is highly developed in cats.

—Several weddings are on the tapis for the near future.

—The base ball tourists returned home on Saturday morning.

—Flowers are blooming luxuriantly on the ladies Spring hats.

—Philipsburg Presbyterians will likely build a new parsonage.

—Prices are becoming less in both the grain and produce markets.

—Anglers for trout are preparing for active operations next Monday.

—Nearly all the Sunday evening church services now begin at 7.30.

—There is a rare and attractive profusion of flowers on the spring hats.

—Smoke from a score of bonfires is wafted upward to greet the heavens.

—Next Sunday is Palm Sunday commemorating Christ's triumphal entrance into Jerusalem.

—A full purse makes many friends. Philipsburg Daily Journal. Do you speak from experience?

—Business is rapidly improving and the business men who advertise are gaining the benefit of it.

—The many ladies who are seen daily carrying prayer books are sufficient evidence that Lent is being carefully observed.

—A large, heavy, gilded pin, evidently belonging to a lady, was found on the street this morning and may be recovered at this office.

—Col. John Sobieski, the eloquent Pplander who is a citizen of Pittsburg, spoke for the Constitutional Amendment in Philipsburg on Saturday evening.

—The large congregations who listened to Rev. W. A. Houck, the new M. E. minister, on Sunday, were much pleased with his discourses and his manner of delivery.

—Bedford Springs will not open for summer guests till June, but the Bellefonte season has already commenced and the town even now has a fair supply of strangers.

—We know an item about a pet dog which was quite ill for two weeks and is now well again, but will not give the real facts unless there is a great desire to learn them.

—About twenty-five or thirty young men attended the first meeting in the new building of the Y. M. C. A. on Sunday afternoon. The audience room up stairs is comfortable and pleasant.

—President Harrison asks every one to go to church, pray and give thanks at 9 o'clock a. m. on Tuesday, the 30th, and he would be a very selfish individual who would not comply with such an excellent request.

—We understand that the Y M C A have decided to hold their series of receptions or house warmings on Monday and Tuesday evenings of both court weeks, which will bring it on the 29th and 30th of April and the 6th and 7th of May.

—Milesburgers will please take better care of their church buildings. There one of them was struck by lightning and destroyed last summer and on Sunday another made a narrow escape, its chandelier falling and jeopardizing the safety of the structure.

—Those scientists who profess to see a connection between sun spots and physical disturbances on this planet will undoubtedly claim a confirmation of their theory in the fact that the presence of those spots at this time has been accompanied by severe and unseasonable storms.

AFTER MANY DAYS.

A CORRESPONDENT LIVING AT ROMOLA TELLS OF THE EVENTS IN THAT LOCALITY.

ROMOLA, April 8, 1889.

DEAR EDITOR.—Nothing about us has appeared in your paper for so long that we feel that we have taken a back seat in the world's affairs.

But things happen here just as they do elsewhere in the country.

The debate at the Mann school house died a natural death three weeks ago. The friends who proved themselves most faithful and who were there at the obsequies on the last night were the great temperance advocates, John A Daley and N J Meeloskey. The immediate cause of the dissolution of the interesting affair was a lack of revenue—not even sufficient to pay for light and paper.

Mrs. James Wilson, of Cameron, and formerly of this place, has been visiting her friends here, of whom there are legion.

Miss Mary Mann, who died suddenly on April 2d, was a daughter of Wm. D Lane Mann. Her age was 22 years. She was a member of the Disciple church of Marsh Creek and a regular attendant at Sunday-school. She had many friends and was highly respected by all who knew her. Rev. J F Finley delivered the funeral sermon, taking the 23d Psalm for a basis to his remarks. His words were appropriate and produced an impression on the minds of many hearers. Interment in the Disciple church yard.

Edward Welch, son of Zera Welch, drank half a bottle of laudanum last week, supposing it to be wine. The physician ordered that he be kept awake and not permitted to sleep under any circumstances. This, although difficult, was done and he recovered.

There will be an entertainment at the Quay school house on the 17th. The school has prepared elaborately and the entertainment promises to be above the average. Admission will be free, David Roob and Sadie Bechtel, teachers.

Charles Jones our experienced log driver, is managing the drive on Baker's Run at present.

Peter Roob, Sr., has moved back to Romola after a six years sojourn near Howard.

Mrs. Laura E Whitmire and Mrs Julia Whitmire, of Berwick, attended the funeral of their sister, Mary Mann, last week.

Miss Eliza Fisher, of Hyners Run, is visiting friends about Romola at present.

Rev. J P Funtz delivered a temperance lecture in the Disciple church last Saturday evening. His opinion seems to be that whiskey must go.

Lively Blanchard.

Gardening is the regular employment now.

Capt. Singer has two hundred cabbage plants set out.

Mr. Jos Bomgardner, the lightning calculator, is getting out a revised edition of his work on addition.

A. E. Graham has a well stocked store. He is also an extensive manufacturer of an excellent brand of cigars.

A canvass of Liberty township shows a majority in favor of the Prohibitory Amendment.

Daniel Bsriew, one of our expert boot and shoe makers, sends his work as far west as Washington Territory.

J. Irvin Kuhns has the Bald Eagle full of saw logs and several rafts of square timber ready to float to market as soon as a freshet occurs.

The I. O. O. F. of this place will attend the anniversary at Renovo, and will take our Cornet Band with them.

On last Saturday the roof of David Kuhn's house took fire, but, with the help of his neighbors, the fire was quenched before it damaged anything but the roof.

Mr. S. H. Kuhns is the happy owner of one of the nicest dwellings in this valley. It is elegantly and luxuriously furnished.

The P. O. S. of America meets every Monday night in the G. A. R. Hall over Capt. Quigley's store. This camp is prospering and receiving new members every night of its meeting. Mr. A. E. Graham is its commander, E. S. Mobly, is its President and H. A. Snyder its recording secretary.

H. A. Snyder received the post office prize in this place. He will make an efficient officer.

"The Stolen Will" is the title of a play that will be delineated in our Opera House on Saturday evening, the 13th inst. The artistes are Misses Annie F. Clark, Maud Snyder, Mary Clark, Mame E. Quigley, Edith Clark, Mame Snyder and Mrs. T. A. Snyder, H. C. Quigley, Albert Bolapue, Harry Fearon, David Robb, James R. Hughes, Irvin Spangler and J. Edward Quigley. A good time and a good performance are expected.

Preparations for Decoration day are under way. On that day the I. O. O. F. the P. O. S. of America will be in line with the old vets as well as our Sunday schools and march in procession to the respective grave yards.

—A small but excellent eight page weekly paper named "The Amendment" is published in Philadelphia. Its object is to support the Constitutional Amendment and we know of no better way to help the cause than by general circulation of such a publication. One copy for twelve weeks, 25 cents, 5 copies $1.00; 40 copies $5,00; 100 copies, $10.00. While the DAILY NEWS supports the Amendment, we cannot, of course, devote all the space to that course and therefore recommend all who are interested to circulate the Amendment freely. Send all orders to Rev. Irvin P. McCurdy, D. D., 723 South 20th street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Graphophone in Governor Beaver's Office.

We don't believe the following story which appears in an exchange, but it is very amusing and worthy of publication:

Private Secretary Pearson, of Governor Beaver's office, Harrisburg, Pa., had a curious and somewhat startling experience with the graphophone. He began to turn the crank and supposed that he was about to cause the machine to give out to the young lady typewriter a message which the Governor had talked into it the evening previous. The young lady was all attention and the private secretary began solemnly to turn the crank, which works by a treadle. To his horror and the intense embarrassment of the young lady, the following amorous jumble was given out with decided emphasis:

"Now, don't, George. * * * There, somebody will come. Of course I love you. There; somebody really is coming, and you have mussed my hair all up. * * * Please love, I'm so afraid that someone will come in, and, besides, I can't work this crank if you insist upon kissing me all the time. * * *"

The periods represent sounds too familiar to be mistaken. They were the smacking of lips and other sounds which accompany the interchange of caresses between lovers.

It was some little while before the matter could be satisfactorily explained, either by the young lady or Mr. Pearson, who at first were disposed to imagine that somebody had been playing a practical joke upon them. The matter was finally straightened out, however, when the executive clerk came around, and, upon hearing of the incident, laughed heartily. He had on the evening before been showing a bride and groom about the executive department, and, being called away a few minutes, had left them in the private secretary's room to amuse themselves with the graphophone while he attended to the business which had called him away.

April Music from Merry Wedding Bells.

At an early hour on Monday afternoon, the 8th instant, the home of Mrs. James Antes, on East Lamb street, in this borough, was the scene of an elegant wedding. It was the union of Miss Josie Antes, one of Mrs. A's charming daughters, to Mr. Zenas Hartshorn, a preminent and very wealthy citizen of Curwensville, Pa.

Only the family and friends of the bride were present to witness the happy affair and to express their congratulations. It was consummated in a style becoming the occasion. The bride was very beautiful and comported herself with charming grace and the groom was manly and handsome. A collation of light refreshments followed the ceremony.

Rev. W. A. Houck, the new minister of the M. E. church, officiated, it being, we suppose, his first wedding in Bellefonte.

Mrs. Antes, the bride's mother only recently moved to this place and the bride has been in Bellefonte only a few days. Consequently, she is comparatively a stranger. She is well know and exceedingly popular in Bald Eagle Valley, her recent home, and the most enthusiastic wishes for her future prosperity will follow her. The groom is not only wealthy, but is also a member of one of the oldest families of Clearfield, county being a cousin of Gen. Benjamin Hartshorn of near Curwensville.

They departed on the 5 o'clock train for a wedding tour and when they return will locate permanently at the home of the groom.

—General Hastings, Benjamin F. Butler, Andrew Carnegie and other gentlemen witnessed a remarkable experiment in Philadelphia a few days ago They saw Mr. Edward Fales, an inventor, heat a room as hot as a furnace with a stove in which he used a very small quantity of coal. The inventor succeeded in creating by the fire itself two different currents of air of different temperature through separate parts of the grate. The result is a partial vacuum in the centre of the grate and a cyclone in the drum of the stove. It is to be a method by which an iron furnace can be started in a drawing room and can send an ocean steamer on a long voyage with coal bunkers the size of a few Saratoga trunks. It is expected to revolutionize the usual methods of supplying heat.

Notice to Teachers.

The Committee on Permanent Certificates will meet to examine applicants for permanent certificates, April 19 and 20, 1889, in High school room, Bellefonte, Pa. An examination for professional certificates will be held at same time and place.

Crushed Beneath the Wheels.

The Altoona Times of Monday narrates the particulars of a sad and fatal accident as follows:

A fatal accident occurred Saturday afternoon at Bellwood, the victim being Samuel Cox. He was a single man, aged 27 years, and his home was near Tyrone. Mr. Cox was employed as a brakeman on the Bell's Gap railroad and while in discharge of his duties was in some way thrown from his train and fell under the wheels. His left arm was crushed to the shoulder and his right foot was ground off at the ankle and the leg crushed to the thigh. He was brought to this city at 5.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon and taken to the city hospital where the injured leg was amputated and the arm dressed. The unfortunate man lingered until 5.30 o'clock yesterday morning when death relieved his sufferings. Samuel Cox makes the third one of the family who have met with this terrible misfortune of losing a leg, but the others recovered from their injuries. One of them, a brother, and a cigar-maker by trade, resides in Tyrone. The remains were taken charge of by undertaker Tipton and will be taken to the home of his father.

The body was brought to the home of his brother-in-law, G W Lemon, on Dallas street, this place, last night, and will be taken from there to Warriorsmark for interment to-morrow morning.

—It is rumored that Postmaster General Wanamaker has under consideration a device or improvement designed to insure greater legibility in the post marks which are impressed on all letters sent through the mails. This seems to be a good idea. At the present time a number of different cancellation marks are employed, but they frequently are so indistinct that they are almost invisible. Above all else, the name of sending and receiving offices should be so plainly impressed on every letter as to be told at a glance. Much often depends on this apparently trifling circumstance, and if there is a remedy it ought to be employed.

—There is one characteristic about Postmaster General Wanamaker which is truly admirable. While other so-called statesmen are standing off afraid to state their position on the prohibition question, the Postmaster General comes out with a boldness which has no thought of consequences. He is a Prohibitionist in the extremest possible way and he is opposed to high license or any license. That is our position exactly. It is the only logical position to take. Why is it that men, as a rule, havn't judgment enough to see that this is the only correct position and back bone sufficient to hold to it boldly?

DEATH OF AN ESTEEMED LADY.

THE WIFE OF EX-SHERIFF W. C. WOODRING DIED AT HER HOME IN THIS PLACE MONDAY NIGHT.

The somber folds of heavy crape at the door of ex-Sheriff W. C. Woodring's house on Allegheny street tell the sad truth that the wife and mother has passed from scenes of suffering into the blissful beyond. Mrs. Woodring became ill several weeks ago and after much suffering death came to her relief at 10 o'clock Monday night. During much of the time of her illness life seemed suspended in the balance and there were alternate hopes and fears in the hearts of her friends. On Sunday, we were told, there was an improvement, but it was only the precursor of final dissolution.

This death is attended with unusually sad circumstances. She is the mother of five children, three boys and two girls. There were eight children in all, but two daughters and one son have preceeded her into the Heavenly home. The surviving children are young and will greatly miss a kind mother's care. To the husband, too, it is a severe blow as he will feel very acutely the separation from such an efficient companion of all his joys and griefs. The consolations which come to the afflicted and the sympathies of many friends are theirs in more than thesual measure.

The maiden name of deceased was Margaret Catharine Huey. She was born in this county forty-eight years ago, near Pine Grove Mills. She leaves three sisters, Mrs. D. F. Fortney and Mrs. Cyrus Strickland, of this place, and Mrs. Williamson of Milroy, Pa.

Miss Eva Simpson, of Lock Haven, is the guest of Miss Brockerhoff, of this place.

Hayes Grier, superintendent of State Printing, saw the notice in a Bellefonte paper, and notified interested parties that Mr. Baker is working in the State printing office at Harrisburg.

—Of Rev. Dr. Monroe's first two sermon's in that place on Sunday the Altoona Tribune on Monday contained the following notice: "In the crowded conditions of our columns this morning we have no room for an outline or abstract of these very able sermons, and neither would do them justice, but only serve to mar their beauty and diminish their force. Dr. Monroe's reputation as a preacher is as wide as the conference and the First church is, indeed, fortunate in securing his service as its pastor. He proclaims the gospel of Christ with no uncertain sound, and while he interests his hearers his words are full of instruction."

A Centre County Boy.

The company is fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Leathers, and if its business don't boom it will not be the fault of its traveling agent.
